

THE LOST CAUSE

This is a look at modern history and primarily two of the greatest facets of that: The American Civil War and the Second World War.

By itself, the Civil War in America has often been referred to as "The Lost Cause", at least as it regards the Confederacy and the whole notion of a Southern aristocracy. It is recognized as having been the first truly "modern" war, the one wherein the most new inventions of destruction - from lighter-than-air craft to submarines - were introduced. It assumed an almost "religious" connotation to it as exemplified in the lyrics of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic". And it remains as the most costly war in terms of lives lost that the United States has ever been involved in, more than all the rest of its wars combined.

The Second World War has been rightly referred to as "The Big One", with more people killed or displaced, more destruction and with the world leaving one age and entering another. Many will think right away of the Nuclear Age or the Space Age. Not necessarily, as this book will explore. But the world still lives in the shadow of the Second World War despite all of the subsequent conflicts that have taken place. There is a fascination for it which no doubt will enter the permanent mythology of our people. It is yet touted to have been the fight that "saved the world". People are generally taught that it was the ultimate showdown between "Good" and "Evil".

These two great conflicts are the favorites of military buffs everywhere. I can remember when the very last of the Civil War veterans died. And today, as of this writing, statisticians claim that we are losing the WWII veterans at the rate of five thousand a day and soon there'll be none of those left, either. However, both wars are kept alive through new books and documentaries that never seem to run out of fresh source material and recent revelations. Indeed, World War Two remains the best documented conflagration in all history and vast amounts of this documentation are only now being examined by historians. There are even the weekend reenactors who re-stage, at least in the case of the Civil War, the actual military engagement replete with period weapons and costumes.

However, all of that old, cold "names, dates and places" business has been and will continue to be done to death by the scholars and I wouldn't presume or desire to even attempt to give such as those any kind of competition. One truly great revisionist author pointed out that, generally speaking, modern historians go and take the first ten volumes written on such a subject, absorb them, and then proceed on to write volume eleven. I have neither the time nor the resources for that.

I know well what it was that I was taught in the public educational system. It was the same as everyone else and it amounted to what still stands as The Great Myth. I loved it and embraced it, as did all the rest. The tremendous sense of national purpose managed to carry over and come alive even decades later. It was great "fun". It made one "feel good" to see the "good guys" win at the end. (Ourselves being the "good guys", of course.) No wonder at all that it still sells.

But something within me didn't remain satisfied. The world I woke up into was a wonderful place but a place that was sinking into something awful, something barely tangible when I was a very young person. Changes? Yes. But every single change appeared to lessen or otherwise degrade the situation as it had just been. I for one sensed dying all around me of everything worthwhile as far as a society is concerned and being gradually replaced by dirtiness, cheapness and ugliness. And I suppose I was smart enough to come to see that the very "ideals" so high-flown that there two great wars were fought for - supposedly - were the very things that now seemed to be propelling all of this same societal degeneracy and decay.

It didn't require genius or a university education to realize that the peak of the civilization that I had loved, that I had been born into and that I now saw dying must have been right around the time of the Second World War. I mean, didn't the "good guys" win after all? Why then was the world, and worse than that, home itself, turning to crap right before the eyes? Could it possibly be that things hadn't been what they seemed or were presented as being? I, to my credit I suppose, never stopped questioning, never stopped investigating.

A number of certainties, as many as I have been able to arrive at, will be presented in this short volume. The first one of these is this: If one isn't clear on the exact, the real nature of these two conflicts, then he will not be clear on anything else.

A look at the names given to them is revealing. In the American Civil War, the South was backed by England and France while the North was actively aided by Russia. Here were truly world proportions. Both World Wars, that of 1914 and that of 1939, began as European civil wars which spilled over and got way out of control, with Europe as a whole itself being the big loser (as America might have been had the European powers landed troops on American soil.) It was in effect a "world war" at the time of the American Revolution. And the civil wars of Europe have been on-going since there has been a Europe.

The difference now? Western Civilization continued to rise and to strengthen throughout, regardless... that was until the end of the Second World War. Something changed. Something was very different from all the rest. That is what this book seeks to examine.

Then on to the dusty litany of those same "names, dates and places" that I spoke of earlier. The reenactors typify it best by decking out in those period costumes and taking up those antiquated weapons, getting out into the cow pastures and literally retracing the same footsteps and maneuvers as were taken by men and armies of centuries past. Fun? Alright. But I would have to ask, where is the real knowledge, the wisdom and the understanding in all of that? If the millions of men that everyone, on both sides, seems to honor who died in those wars are not to have died in vain, then had we not better come to grasp the historic principles involved? After all, what are names, dates and places minus any real meaning?

Napoleon said that history was a collection of lies that have been agreed upon. He was right but I would add this: Agreed upon, yes, but only by the VICTORS of these wars. To go even further, this truly historic principle, as outlined by Napoleon two hundred years ago, was only to reach its own climax after his time.

Both of these conflicts are yet portrayed as great contests, "close calls", as it were, wherein "goodness", "freedom", "right" and even civilization itself were in mortal danger of going down forever. Nothing could have been further from the truth, as we will go on to explore. Neither the military aspect, which people still imagine might have hinged on this or that twist of fate, nor the world-historical, philosophical aspect which, once more, people are still under the impression was so cut-and-dried with, again, "right" coming out on top.

Back to what I had brought up closer to the opening of this - to better understand what those struggles were really all about, take a look around you, instead at what WON those fights, and reflect upon the kind of world that came about as a result of the triumph of the common philosophy present in both.

Finally, with regard now only to the Second World War, the commonly held notion is that someone was out to conquer the world. Yes. Someone was out to conquer the world. And, indeed, that is exactly what they did. The hand, or the lying tongue, is so much quicker than the eye. And it is this matter that I intend to clear up.

THE ONLY CAUSE WORTH FIGHTING FOR...

...is the lost cause. That is a very tricky historical concept but a very valid one. Hopefully, this short book ought to have it satisfactorily explained before its conclusion. And note that I do term this the lost CAUSE - not causes - despite the fact that I'm focusing on two separate, historic struggles, a century apart and a world away from each other. The reality is that both involved the same cause when looked at accurately, in the light of reason.

That cause involved basically two issues: One, the principle of national sovereignty and; Two, the principle of White racial integrity. Will people be allowed to formulate and live according to their own rules? And will people - Whites - be permitted to truly BE what they are without such things as so-called "diversity" being inflicted upon them? No one questions a Black African nation's right to be Black. No one questions or challenges China's right to be and to stay Chinese. But there is no such thing as a White nation that reserves the right to be and to keep itself White. Why is this?

Is this unreasonable? Is this bigoted? What forms nations anyway if not the blood of the people which make them up? Remember Israel in Egypt. A people and a nation within another people and nation. Later they seized their own land. Later still, they lost it.

Much later, they acquired more. Most will now imagine that I refer to the modern, bandit state of "Israel". I do not. But my point is that a nation is not some shared philosophy or politic which may dominate within the area of some lines drawn upon a map.

I recently viewed a drama about the criminal underworld in the United States early in the twentieth century. One of the major mob bosses of the time - Arnold Rothstein - posed and then answered his own question when he said, "What made America? Money!" I couldn't differ more strongly. The best of White blood invading - yes - from Europe is what made America. Previously the concept hadn't even existed. Again, a nation is the blood of its people, not some geographic area. At the opposite end of this spectrum is the proper definition of the term "degenerate". The dictionary defines this as: "Fallen or deteriorated from a former, higher or normal condition".

The above is what killed ancient Egypt, Israel, Greece and Rome. The lines on the map are still there but the people aren't the same any longer. The names are the same but not the people. The greatness is gone. To greater or lesser extents, the Whites are gone. Have a look at the ancient statuary of these formerly great cultures. The faces appear as though they could be found on any street in any city in northern Europe or Scandinavia in the present day. Degeneracy.

This is what will kill any high civilization. And it is the "wretched refuse" of that decay which has ever made up the ranks of that same underworld that I previously mentioned. (Jews, like Arnold Rothstein, also being very major players in this.) In 1950 the United States was 90% White. By the year 2050, as even the official statisticians admit, the United States will be half colored. Refer back to that dictionary quote once more. And one should pause to reflect... What shape will that half that remains nominally White be in culturally and morally?

Now ask yourself, would a "White" government do this to its own people? "Wars were fought"... as people never tire of saying. Millions of men died for our right to vote so we could enjoy... What? This? I rather think not. But, again, the hand is quicker than the eye. Barnum no doubt summed it up best but fools must be reproducing themselves at a rate of better than one a minute in order to be able to have standing an entire population of them. A "victor" nation killing itself by leaps and bounds and calling it "democracy" or "high ideals". Or is it a matter of its becoming its own final victim?

The traditional conservative movement in the United States has always had it that "our" leaders were "bumbling" and "inept", always making stupid "mistakes", always being "suckered" in some way. This, according to the conservatives, was the reason for our national troubles. And, according to the same conservatives, the "next election" would take care of things. Yet the century-old downhill trend has remained unaltered in spite of any of this. America is becoming more and more degenerate. No, it doesn't happen overnight. It happens by stages. But there does come a point of no return.

These so-called "leaders" are invariably wealthy and successful lawyers and businessmen. They are anything but stupid. And they do not make mistakes. No. The answer, the explanation has got to lie elsewhere. To find it may require some hard thinking. Are you up to it?

Two concepts which are very real but which the average American refuses to recognize and accept are conspiracy and hidden agenda. Some tiny minority supposes that it knows better what the future should hold for the vast majority. That their plan involves the diminishing of that same majority might not sit too well with them and, therefore, it must be concealed from them... or else. Real power is carefully, skillfully usurped and a "smiley face" is painted upon an alien philosophy of racial and national suicide. Of course, with the media and educational system already bought up, a veritable blizzard of lies takes care of the rest.

And if worse should come to worse and there ever be any significant resistance to any of this, then there is but one answer: WAR!

War to preserve the right and freedom of men? No. War to forcefully deprive Whites of their own, native institutions and leaders and of the safety of their collective, White consciousness, willpower and purpose.

Never take your eye off of the disparity between promise and performance. There never were enough criminal types to go and fight and die for the actual purpose behind these wars, that is, the cause of the lie. So millions of honest yet simple folk had to be deluded to go and fight - to kill and to die - for some official cover story, something noble-sounding, in order to advance the cause of the conspiracy which they knew nothing about. They fought out of the best of instincts. Yet look at what they got.

You'll know them by their fruits and you'll surely reap what you sow. "Impenetrably stupid", is how one great man referred to the broad masses of people. After all these lies, all this destruction, all of this damage and the horrendous trends that are in effect everywhere as a result, they obviously must assume - as indeed they are led to believe - that this is the price that must be paid for true "democracy". No different at all from the insanity that a police state is the price that must be paid for "freedom".

It is a general, historic rule that people simply do not wake up to this sort of thing. Matters involving inertia or, as David said, "If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do?" However, at those rare yet momentous times when nations have awakened and arisen comes the stuff of which the Lost Cause has been made.

THE INSIPIENT SUPERSTATE

It is perhaps the very bottom line to all White misfortune that is has been their very own White institutions which have been co-opted and then turned against them. Where there is White awareness, White unity and White organization, no frontal assault by any enemy can succeed. But with their attention diverted, their senses dulled and with them divided against themselves, they become a prey. To paraphrase Goethe, the best kind of slaves are those who imagine themselves to be free. This state would naturally remove most of the threat of revolt. What better way to accomplish this than to allow the fools to retain their own co-opted and hollowed-out institutions?

One such institution is Freemasonry. Prior to the time of the Renaissance they were known as the Knights Templar. And before that the same traditions carried all the way back to ancient Israel, to Egypt and beyond. As the outward structure of any society would break up and fall away, this brotherhood of initiates would retain the knowledge necessary to keep the thread of civilization alive, enabling it to carry over into the next era, the next venue where a strong civilization might take root. And this itself would depend entirely upon when and where a large enough number of untainted Whites would secure a piece of real estate for themselves to settle upon, develop and grow.

The role of the Knights Templar in the development of Western, Christian Civilization cannot be overestimated. Their role, now as the Freemasons, in the creation of the United States of America can be best put by stating flat-out... "it was their baby".

And a good thing it was, too. Straight in line with Biblical prophecy, the United States arrived on the stage of history as the Thirteenth Tribe of Israel, that of Manasseh. "One Composed of Many", or "E Pluribus Unum". It represented all of Israel's tribes contained in a single geo-political entity. The other twelve tribes were represented by the modern states of Europe. All of them brothers - literally - all of them White. They came here and TOOK this land precisely as God had commanded their ancient forebears to TAKE the land of Canaan after they had abandoned the decadent and dying Egypt. The chosen form of government of the Founding Fathers was a carbon copy of the ancient Israelite system of judges, employed before the advent of kings.

It is important to note at this point that here is the basis for the notion of a "melting pot" when regarding America. It meant Whites from the various White nations of Europe, all of them closely related, and with no harm possible - either culturally or genetically - through mingling or marriage. As we well know, this concept was to be deliberately twisted and its and its true intent bent out of all proportion to indicate some racial Babylon as the "ideal". The all-too-familiar words, only later attached to the base of the Statue of Liberty, typify this evil sentiment... You know, the "wretched refuse" bit. They were, of course, penned by a Jewess, Emma Lazarus.

One more critical point to bring up concerns so-called "racism". "All men are created equal." And how the liars and the distorters do love that one! The thing people generally overlook concerning that is that most of the framers of the U.S. Constitution - the men who actually wrote it and then attached their signatures to it - were themselves slave-holders. Later on, in the same document, when it came to the matter of the taking of the census, these same men specified that Negroes were to be counted as only three-fifths of a human being. Now the original statement is within its proper context. Obviously then, they meant that all WHITE MEN were created equal.

Indeed, at the time God gave to Abraham the Covenant, he declared that all of his succeeding offspring would - each man of them - be kings and priests. Such strange language. What could it really mean? Simply this: That within the breast of every good White specimen would exist the instinct for law and morality. And upon this basis alone, for this people alone, could there ever be any thought of democracy, of self-government.

For all of the rest, the darker races of this planet, the only possible form of government is some form or another of tyranny. They possess within themselves neither the capacity for law or morality, that is the capacity to govern themselves, and so they must live either in complete chaos or under the gun. This reality, not any social or economic deprivation, much less so-called "White racism", is what accounts for the colored crime rate even within White societies.

Another key point is that we can never separate Whites from Christianity. Even though the Christian Church has long since gone rotten and fallen to our racial enemies, it has been what has propelled us as a people for the last two thousand years and has brought us to today, which represents the end of times. Every single step of this way, up to and including the compromise of the Church itself, was seen, prophesized and written of in the Bible those many centuries ago.

As the story in Genesis goes, Jacob - or Israel - gave to his son, Joseph, the birthright to become chief over all of his brothers. It was in fact the jealousy as a result of this decision which led the other brothers to sell Joseph into Egyptian slavery. The rest of the story is known well enough. Interestingly, one recent documentary which dealt with the discovery of Joseph's tomb in Egypt (his body having been removed at the time of the Exodus) made it a point of declaring with pride that their expertise in research and forensics had revealed conclusively that Joseph in life had had bright red hair. George Washington, under the powdered wig and though he was balding, also had bright red hair.

Joseph was, in fact, the father of the Anglo-Saxons. He, in turn, divided his birthright between his own two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh. Ephraim went on to become the British Empire - at least insofar as the White Dominions were concerned - while, as previously stated, Manasseh was to become the United States. Even to this day, as sad and as sorry as White fortunes have become, the economic and military power of the West remains irresistible in the world. And who is it that remains chief among the Western nations?

Now to the role of Jews. The modern world has been made well aware of the saga of "Braveheart". Details having to do with two of his contemporaries remain largely unknown, however.

"Edward Longshanks", or King Edward the First of England expelled all Jews from the realm in the year 1290, citing economic usury and other excesses as his cause.

And in the year 1320 Robert Bruce addressed the following letter to Pope John XXII, which has since come to be known as the Scottish Declaration of Independence...

"We know, Most Holy Father and Lord, and from the chronicles and books of the ancients gather, that among other illustrious nations, ours, to wit the nation of the Scots, has been distinguished by many honors; which passing from the greater Scythia through the Mediterranean Sea and Pillars of Hercules, and sojourning in Spain among the most savage tribes through a long course of time could nowhere be subjugated by any people however barbarous; and coming thence one thousand two hundred years after the outgoing of the people of Israel, they, by many victories and infinite toil, acquired for themselves the possessions in the West which they now hold."

Jews did not return to England until the time of Oliver Cromwell and his Puritans, some four centuries later, in 1655. By this time the people had forgotten the stranglehold which the Jews had previously gotten over them and their homeland. Not only that but, as far as I have been able to determine, the misreading and misunderstanding of the Bible has led such as the Puritans to the mistaken conclusion that the Jews were somehow "God's Chosen People". This most horrible of errors has been what has plagued Christianity, the West and the White race ever since.

Jews? Israel? All of this connection yet all of this confusion. It was tidied up in one short verse, Isaiah 65: 15, when it said, "And ye shall leave your name for a curse unto my chosen: for the Lord God shall slay thee, and call his servants by another name:"

That new name was Christians. Those remaining behind now as Jews were God's accursed. The bastardized offspring of White, Hebrew, Israelite men and dark, native Canaanite women. "The sins of the fathers." This was the great "eclipse" that Christ came to separate. And separate it he did. It was for this that he was murdered by these Canaanite Jews.

But of course this error followed right across the Atlantic Ocean to America with the first colonists. It quickly came to infect Freemasonry. As they say, in all things are contained the seeds of its own destruction. The Jews soon enough assumed a determining role in U.S. affairs. Benjamin Franklin had urged for the Jews to be excluded from the newly-formed United States in the Constitution itself but, apparently, was deemed as being too much of an "extremist" or "alarmist" at the time.

Finally on this topic, it is Freemasonry which still secretly rules to this day. But it is Jews who are the guiding, controlling force behind Freemasonry.

Imagine this scenario: The ideal arrangement for conspiratorial activity would have to be a structure such as that of the Freemasons. One that already holds most of the leading, powerful and influential personalities with the government and the society. One made up of tightly controlled levels, where the lower levels have no idea what the upper levels are doing or intending. A "pyramid", in short. Secrecy is the watchword. Something like this would be tailor-made to allow many of the very best to be used by the very worst. It would then actually amount to an "Anglo-Jewish Conspiracy".

BROTHER AGAINST BROTHER

Jews can't be blamed for everything, however. When talking about Christianity and the role of Jesus Christ, as previously gone into, it was the "sins of the fathers" that he had come to save us from. Whereas God had commanded the annihilation or total expulsion of the native, Canaanite element, the ancient Israelites instead made slaves of many of these tribes, eventually, over the centuries, assimilating them into their culture and religion. After enough of this had gone on, the whole population became known as "Jews" and the Hebrew Temple itself became compromised and without meaning any longer.

And today... Should you be walking down any street in America and encounter a person by the name of Washington, Jefferson or Jackson, etc., what is it exactly that you usually have? Why, a Negro, of course. The recurring sin. The result of lust. Time and proximity. LIVING SINS to come back upon us. And come back they did.

It is interesting that slavery was never condemned in the Bible. The racial bastardization which resulted from different races being brought together most definitely is condemned but the direct connection is not made, unfortunately.

The institution of slavery has been considered as an economic necessity anywhere that Whites have not possessed the numbers needed to handle all the hard, manual labor which is part of an agrarian culture. So it was in the U.S. South. Abraham Lincoln attacked slavery as a debasement of Anglo-Saxon labor while at the same time stressing that there was and could not be any so-called "equality" between the races and that Blacks should be repatriated to Africa, for which purpose the land known today as Liberia was purchased from France.

The opening of Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation reads this way: "I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, and commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy thereof, do hereby proclaim and decree that... it is my purpose upon the next meeting of Congress to again recommend... the immediate or gradual abolishment of Slavery... and that the effort to colonize persons of African descent, with their consent, upon the continent or elsewhere, with the previously obtained consent of the government existing there, will be continued; that on the first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty three, all persons held as slaves within any State, or any designated part of a State, the people whereof shall then be in rebellion against the United States, shall be then, thenceforward and forever free;"

But behind Lincoln stood the radical Republicans, full of greedy opportunists, the purely insane like John Brown of Harper's Ferry infamy, and, of course, Jews. Leave it to the Jewish input to infect any good cause and turn it toward an evil direction.

Typical of the war-mongering hysteria engendered in the years just prior to the outbreak of the Civil War was the propaganda novel, "Uncle Tom's Cabin", written by Harriet Beecher Stowe. This woman happened to be married to a Jew. When Lincoln first met her at a gathering, he remarked, "So you're the little lady whose book started this big war."

Previously has been mentioned historic principles and many of these will now come to overlap both the Civil War and the Second World War. For war is pretty much war, no matter how you cut it. And we've already brought up the issue of national sovereignty. The various states of the Union were formed originally for a purpose and not just for the hell of it. These concepts were taken most seriously at the time. The Southern states were doing nothing which was out of line with the U.S. Constitution, nothing which was illegal.

But there were those in the North who wanted war. For the most part, it was out of greed. Wealthy Northerners simply desired to plunder the South to eliminate business competition, etc. Then too, as already mentioned, were the religious fanatics and the insane like John Brown whose mood of hysteria, again, stemmed from a misreading and misunderstanding of the Bible. Most people have no idea that it was only at this time that the words, "In God We Trust", were added to U.S. coinage. Lastly were the Jews whose motivations were darkest of all: To disrupt and destroy White society so as to allow for the wholesale interbreeding and bastardization of the White race in America with the coloreds.

Honor is a concept now all but forgotten. But in 1861 it was still very much alive. After sufficient goading and provocation on the part of the federal government, the Southern states, one by one, exercised their right and politely withdrew from the Union in order to be left alone. A little more of this pushing and shoving and South Carolina took the bait and commenced military action against Fort Sumter which lay in Charleston Harbor and which at the time was in federal hands. Thus was provided the spark which set off the Civil War.

Anyone not already familiar with or otherwise interested in the course of the war should refer to any standard, community library references on the matter.

Among the outstanding similarities between the Civil War and the Second World War is the clever gambit on the part of the real aggressors to make it appear as though it was they who had been attacked first. This tactic is generally called "baiting". It is a thoroughly Jewish technique and you can read of it at some length in the New Testament as the Jews would try in vain to provoke Jesus into saying or doing something to provide them with the excuse they desired to destroy him. Last resort, of course, is naked illegality but an illegality totally submerged in hysteria so that no one notices or cares.

For Lincoln, the purpose was to preserve the Union at all costs. So-called "racism" wasn't very much of an issue at all as all sane and right-thinking people - North and South - would never in a million years have considered a Negro as their "equal". Slavery, as an institution, might well be repugnant to them but racial "equality", never! However, once war breaks out, all bets are off and, again, hysteria takes the helm. It now becomes a primitive matter of, "Kill the enemy!" The "enemy" then was either blue or gray. The idea of a White brother had disappeared. And should some screwball abstract idea like "free the slaves" isn't sufficient to induce brother to kill brother, then it becomes - in the hands of the propagandists - the "defense" of one's own home. The truth is lost. For the soldier at the front, as ever, it's kill or be killed. All he sees or knows is the sight of his friends being killed all around him. "Issues" thus disappear and it devolves into a savage bloodletting.

Both sides, it is claimed, imagined that the war would be over with quickly. This might have been the unrealistic and romantic hope of the masses of people but I don't think it was any consideration on the part of those who deliberately engineered the war. For one, you do not start a war that you think you may lose. Two factors - Industry and Population - guaranteed victory to the North, no matter what. This was well enough realized at the time. "Conquest" could never have been a consideration in the South. For them, a "win" would have amounted to a stalemate which would merely have permitted them to survive as an independent entity.

This is one more striking similarity with the situation as it was in the Second World War: National survival against an aggressive foe, bent on conquest, with unlimited men and material.

Pit brother against brother, the best against the best. Give them the fieriest of motivations, the most modern weapons that their genius for technology can devise. And on one side at least place implacable zealots who'll stop at nothing to see their own hidden agenda through to success. What result can you expect apart from a colossal, fratricidal slaughter?

The South performed better than anyone dared dream and the war became protracted. However, in the end, it was the original theory of unending and expendable human lives, together with an untouchable industrial base, that carried the day. The armies of the South, led as they were by military geniuses, might take out as many of the enemy as they themselves possessed in numbers but, in the end, it was no good. The South couldn't make up its losses while even worse losses meant nothing to the North.

It amounted to strangulation. It was called, even at the time, the "Anaconda System".

ADVANCE TO BARBARISM

That is the title of a book by author F.J.P. Veale who figures as one of the pioneers of the revisionist historian movement. Revisionist history is simply that which interests itself with the truth of the matter rather than popular mythology. His thesis in the book is that, while the development of warfare over the past thousand years or so had been more or less along humanitarian lines, over the course of the previous century, that is, starting with the Civil War in America, it had turned downward once more toward barbarity. What Veale meant by this specifically is that war no longer was being confined to professional armies opposing one another in the field but was now being turned against civilian populations as well.

The Southern States had the legal right to do what they did. But it is the hidden agenda that is never taken into account with regard to the barbaric nature of the Civil War. A small clique which had determined the way they wanted to see the future go - regardless of anything or anyone - and toward this purpose they created the war. Perhaps an easy surrender on the part of the South would have suited their purposes equally as well but, again, honor was a major factor yet in those times. The South resisted bravely and well. No matter. The ultimately alien, non-White spirit behind this was determined to see it through to a certain conclusion, i.e., the erasure of Southern society, regardless of cost. (Best of all, as far as they were concerned, the cost wasn't theirs to pay.)

Traditional conflict between professional, and I might add, gentlemanly, forces in the field was the way the war began. But it was producing nothing. The population in the North soon began expressing its desire for a negotiated peace with the South. The key always to these conspiratorial plays involves keeping the wool pulled over the eyes of the peoples involved so as to be able to maintain the momentum. And never forget the mad, evil inspiration behind it all which, to the minds of its holders, was paramount over all. The gloves would have to come off.

It came down to things like Sherman's march to the sea wherein he boasted that even the crows would have to carry their own rations. Total destruction, scorched earth. People don't seem to pause to reflect on the implication of that. It's as though they imagine that's the way it's always been and, worse, that that's the way it should be. For more than a generation now they've been faced with the hydrogen bomb which represents the ultimate expression of this same barbarity. It reflects an alien input.

Once the South had demonstrated that it was going to be far from a military push-over, the sentiment then had to become one of outrage... "How dare you resist!" To the average Northerner, the Southern civilian was now a rebel, a traitor and the issue was now one of punishment. In the South, however, was incredulity at such aggression coupled with the unshakable determination to defend their home and way of life at all cost.

Robert E. Lee expressed before he died that, had he been able to foresee the conditions imposed upon the South during what was hypocritically referred to as "Reconstruction", he'd have never surrendered but would have actually fought to the last man and the last round of ammunition.

The conquered South was occupied and divided up, no longer by states, but according to military districts. The Southern economy was a shambles and some mainstream historians have speculated that it hadn't fully recovered even a century later. "Carpetbaggers" from the North were rushing in with good currency and buying up everything in sight for pennies on the dollar, forcing General Grant to issue orders restricting this kind of plunder on the part of those whom he identified as Jews lest their criminal actions provoke a renewed rebellion by the stricken Southern people.

Abraham Lincoln had long been on record for, one, favoring the restoration of the Southern States into the Union "as though they'd never been away" and, two, to get on with the repatriation of the freed slaves back to Africa or the West Indies. But as soon as hostilities were ended and the hidden agenda had the South exactly where it wanted it, Lincoln was assassinated, thus adding more fuel to the fire of hatred and hysteria and playing straight into the hands of the radical Republicans and the Jews. One of the handful of conspirators around Booth made the comment before his execution that, "You'll never know the half of it." These words were echoed by Jack Ruby a hundred years later as he sat in prison, awaiting his own imminent death by cancer. One historic principle to remember is that trigger men are a dime a dozen.

Lincoln, of course, was conveniently disposed of by his own party the moment he had outlived his usefulness - exactly like John Kennedy a hundred years later - and then cynically elevated by them to the cult level of a demi-god to placate the simple-minded masses. Why not? He was now unable to truly represent himself and his intentions. Might as well get some further use out of his image.

Jewish involvement in all of this ran the gamut from their having long before run the slave ships from out of Rhode Island, in the North, to having one of their own, Judah P. Benjamin, next to Jefferson Davis in the Confederate government. One old maxim of theirs has always been that, when one controls both sides, he can hardly lose.

THE KU KLUX KLAN

"Education, sir, is the development of that which IS. Since the dawn of history the negro has owned the continent of Africa - rich beyond the dream of poet's fancy, crunching acres of diamonds beneath his bare black feet. Yet he never picked one up from the dust until a white man showed to him its glittering light. His land swarmed with powerful and docile animals, yet he never dreamed a harness, cart or sled. A hunter by necessity, he never made an axe, spear or arrowhead worth preserving beyond the moment of its use. he lived as an ox, content to graze for an hour. In a land of stone and timber he never sawed a foot of lumber, carved a block, or built a house save of broken sticks and mud. With league on league of ocean strand and miles of inland seas, for four thousand years he watched their surface ripple under the wind, heard the thunder of the surf on his beach, the howl of the storm over his head, gazed on the dim blue horizon calling him to worlds that lie beyond, yet he never dreamed a sail! He lived as his fathers lived - stole his food, worked his wife, sold his children, ate his brother, content to drink, sing, dance, and sport as the ape!"

"And this creature, half child, half animal, the sport of impulse, whim, and conceit, 'pleased with a rattle, tickled with a straw', a being who, left to his will, roams at night and sleeps in the day, whose speech knows no word of love, whose passions, once aroused, are as the fury of the tiger - they have set this thing to rule over the Southern people - "

Those two paragraphs were quoted directly from the historical novel, "The Clansman", by Thomas Dixon. The book was the basis for the ground-breaking feature film classic, "Birth of a Nation", in 1915 which itself was largely responsible for the resurgence of the Ku Klux Klan at that time.

Now, under the gun of federal occupation, came the modern expression of "democracy" as we know it today, i.e., rule by the numbers. Now the real evil of slavery, the importation of colored aliens within our own midst, was made manifest. In many places in the South, it was now, suddenly, colored rule. Anarchy, rape, robbery, murder became the order of the day in the conquered South. There was nothing that a White, Southern citizen could do about any of it. Lifting a hand against a colored in defense of family or home could get you shot by court martial. (Not much different from today when it could get you sent to federal prison for violating their "civil rights".)

It would surely have appeared as though the radicals and the Jews had it going all the way their own way.

But they failed to take into account one thing: This all had taken place so very fast, practically overnight, in fact, and the people of the South, though overwhelmed militarily, had not been beaten morally or spiritually. The educated men of the South, out of the direst necessity, formed an underground, secret society of their own for the purpose of mounting a guerrilla continuation of the war. They called it the Ku Klux Klan after the ancient Greek word for circle and the old, Scottish word for family or tribe. Most of these people were of Scotch-Irish descent and the use of the flaming cross had come directly from the highlands where it had been employed for centuries as an alarm to rouse all of the clans in time of great peril.

Of course, such armed, irregular resistance to Northern occupation - when caught - would result in sentence of death. It came down to where merely being found with a Klan robe would also automatically bring a sentence of death. In the film, "Birth of a Nation", it was brought out that, after having created by hand hundreds of thousands of Klan robes, not a single breach of faith, not one betrayal was made by any woman of the South. We wonder where has such honor as this disappeared to today.

After ten years of desperate and ferocious struggle, federal troops were at last withdrawn and the system of segregation known as "Jim Crow" established itself. It were almost as though the South had won the war for Southern society had managed to successfully maintain itself. Segregation in the North was almost as rigid as it was in the South. So it was to remain for the next hundred years.

PROTOCOLS OF THE LEARNED ELDERS OF ZION

As impressive an exercise of Jewish power the Civil War was, it was but a warm-up. As already mentioned, White heroism had managed to nearly right the wrongs - all but the deaths and the destruction - of the war itself and to make safe once again White, Southern society. As a result, greater days lay ahead for the United States. Western, Christian civilization, as a whole, was still on its way up. This was in conflict to the goal of the hidden agenda. It was time to formalize its power, leaving nothing to hit or miss. The sights were global.

Those who know how to read the Bible will know that the Jews represent the very body of Satan. As such, they/he will not waste time with anything less than full power; He/they will not be content with a mere corner of it for that might include eventual overturn just as with the South following "Reconstruction": This would indicate then complete, formal and coordinated control of the entire White world, both Europe and America.

The Beast has always had more than one head. Out of, first, the Illuminati, came Marxism, or communism. Soon thereafter came Zionism. And in Basle, Switzerland, in the year 1897, was held a meeting of the world's foremost, influential Zionist Jews, whose object it was to hammer out and to codify the tenets of the strategy by which they intended to effectively take over control of the world. The minutes of this gathering were in short time leaked to the outside world as, "The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion".

Quite apart from the atheistic, Marxist Jews, the Zionist Jews clung to the deluded and mistaken conviction that they were indeed "God's Chosen People" destined to rule the world, monopolizing all of earth's wealth and with the rest of the people of the globe serving as their subject slaves. As unbelievable as that sounds, the extent of the documentation supporting the moves of their conspiracy to fulfill this "prophecy" is equally as undeniable as it is chilling.

So damning - if they were true - were these minutes of this meeting or this lecture that World Jewry had no choice other than to instigate a campaign to discredit them... or else. The official story ran that they had been whipped up by the Russian Czarist secret police and that they had been based around some piece of Machiavellian fiction done decades earlier by some French author. Well, I've never seen or been able to examine a specimen of this supposedly "original" French work. It may or may not exist. It ought to be made as easily available by World Jewry as are copies of the "Protocols" by what they term the "liars" of the hard Right Wing. But it isn't.

However, this "forgery", as the Jews call it, had been circulating for three decades when the best commentary ever to be made on them was given by Henry Ford, Sr.

During the 1920s, every purchaser of a new Ford automobile received not only a free copy of the "Protocols" but also a four-volume set of Ford's "The International Jew". This great American, with his almost limitless resources, had directed the editors and researchers of his "Dearborn Independent" to go and gather everything they could on the Jewish conspiracy. For this he earned their everlasting hatred. But, as to the charge that the "Protocols" were a "forgery", he simply observed that it was proven that World Jews had been following their guidelines as though following a blueprint for world domination and had been doing so for the past thirty years. It should be added that this has not changed to date.

There naturally must come a turning point between mere wire-pulling from way behind the scenes and the exercise of more-or-less direct control if a plan such as this is to be seen as making headway. For the United States of America, that point was passed in the year 1913. The introduction of the Federal Reserve, the introduction of income tax, the election of an internationalist president, Woodrow Wilson, etc., are among the key events of that year which took control of the United States out of the hands, of the American people and made of it the globalist bully that it has been ever since, the veritable cat's paw of the conspiracy.

For more than a thousand years, Whites had fought one another in Europe in bloody, costly wars and yet Europe as a whole kept getting stronger, becoming more unified, under the rule of Christian kingdoms, thus enabling it to achieve the world-dominance promised to it by God's Covenant which had been given to Abraham. Once more, for those who know how to line up our history, as it is recorded secularly, with the narratives of the great prophets and, especially, with the Book of Revelation, it will be known that the prophesized Thousand Years of Christ were just then - that is, at the opening of the twentieth century - at their apex, with White, Western, Christian civilization in full command of the globe.

However, just as that reality is overlooked commonly, then just as now, so too is the dire warning imparted to us in the Bible against the terrible danger of permitting Jews to be in our midst to exert their influence over us. For a thousand years they had been largely unable to do this because of the wave of expulsions of them to the east by the Christian kingdoms of the west. At the close of the Thousand Years, Satan would be released from his prison, which I take to be represented by official confinement to the "Pale of Settlement" in the steppes of Russia, and would again be free to deceive the nations by re-infecting the governments, cultures and institutions of White civilization. By the dawn of the twentieth century, this is precisely what World Jewry had accomplished.

From that point, forward, history only records what effects that that has had upon the rest of us.

Someone once said that war is but an extension of politics. This is true. It was Sherman who said that war is hell and this is also quite true. But it is equally true that most are unable to see "politics" as anything other than periodic ballyhoo and war as anything other than something which "happens". Most of them don't care to realize that it is, after all, only the victors in war who write the history, painting themselves always as having been the ones representing the good and the right. If it has truly been a question of one's national survival, then he has been truly vindicated. If the issue has been one of any other consideration, then there may be questions. But any media monopoly of any body of powers-which-be will naturally desire to play that down. So it really is, as F.J.P. Veale claims, a case of "might makes right". (And don't look at the losers of these conflicts as any denial of this. Look instead at the hand which points in accusation - in victory - and to the hairy body that it is attached to.)

What a mindset, what an atmosphere for the likes of the Jews to operate freely in! Tailor-made to lead to the toppling of a magnificent world order and its replacement by the kind of ugliness and monstrosity which we see all around us, enveloping us at present today.

Europe hadn't seen a major conflict in nearly a century, that is, with the close of the Napoleonic Wars. Most of the royal houses of Europe were closely related by blood, just as were the peoples of the respective European nations themselves. And Europe itself directly controlled the rest of the colored world through its colonial empires, with the United States as a direct adjunct. Whites represented one-third of the world population. And it was solidly Christian. Nothing could hope to assail this. At least nothing from without...

The American Civil War was now fully a generation into the past and this country too had become a veritable crown jewel of White, Western, Christian civilization. After the rupture of the Civil War, American society had resettled itself into something grand and positive. The United States had become itself an imperial power in the world. More importantly, it was in the forefront of the eugenics movement which not only meant good breeding but implied as much of it as possible. Besides a high White birthrate, it meant a halt to undesirable immigration, the sterilization of congenitally defective human types and the criminalization of any crossing of the races.

But within this stood a hard-core body of determined aliens and a mass of dark coloreds. Two deadly dangerous issues which had gone unresolved for too long. The nation had failed to heed the likes of Franklin and Lincoln. This magnificent trend, this Thousand Years of Christ, was prophesized to have an end. It was to be the machinations of the Jews of the world which would bring it about and with terrifying swiftness.

UPHEAVAL

Exactly as the doings of Freemasonry in more recent centuries might be considered as an Anglo-Jewish combine, so too could be the root causes of the First World War. Another intra-White affair with the world already having been carved up but with newcomers - like a united Germany - on the scene, international rivalries, etc., just like the jealousy amidst the twelve brothers in the time of Joseph.

The primary culprit for the outbreak of hostilities in 1914 would have had to have been Imperial Russia with its Pan-Slavic ambitions. Next to that, Great Britain, whose recent and most unnatural alliance with France was aimed at undoing the industrial dynamo that Germany had become and thus eliminate a commercial rival in the world. Finally, France itself whose thirst for revenge at the loss of Alsace-Lorraine in 1871 still burned high. Three nations, three causes. And with World Jewry ever-present and more than eager to cash in on all three for its own benefit.

The above interests wanted war. Germany did not want - could not afford - war. Bismarck declared at the foundation of the new German Empire in 1871 that it would require at least a half-century before the new Reich could feel itself secure among its powerful and hostile neighbors. And that much time had not yet expired.

Mad ambitions and secret, binding alliances made the new world conflict, if not altogether inevitable, then at least a potential tenderbox which was apparent enough to see for those with an eye toward mutual White, Christian slaughter to take a keen interest in. War was not expected when the spark of an assassination ignited it. Again, the first thing any student of the workings of conspiracy learns is that trigger men are the easiest commodity of all to come across. Nationalist fervor in the respective European States took over and madness was at the helm once more.

Hitler said that life is the nation. This is true insofar as life remains what it was intended and not some more latter-day mutation of "life". And the kind of honor we've been referring to in this book demands that all individuality be surrendered to the cause of the greater good, the nation. History will note that, with the outbreak of the First World War, the respective nations all marched off to war in a joyful hysteria... for the last time. Until now, these mutual slaughters, bad though they were, only saw Europe, only saw White, Christian civilization grow stronger. That was now to change. The hidden hand was fully present and deeply involved. A nation, any nation, does not squander the flower of its young manhood and expect to escape the consequences. The keynote of the twentieth century was the kind of wars wherein this very thing, this highest of crimes, took place on a grand scale. The result, of course, was the death of the nations involved, at least insofar as the old forms and institutions which made these monstrous sacrifices in vain were concerned.

Dreading just such an eventuality as this, Germany had had in store for decades a military plan designed to quickly knock out the French army and bring about an armistice, the Schlieffen Plan it was called. But this strategy was curiously muffed up during the opening stages of the war and the situation on the Western Front quickly became bogged down in trench warfare where it remained for the next four years. A virtual stalemate but the greatest bloodletting the world had yet witnessed.

The situation on the Eastern Front, following an initial Russian advance onto East Prussian soil, was instantly reversed by the stupendous victory of Hindenburg over the Russians at Tannenberg. For the remainder of the war, Germany stayed on the offensive until Russia, fatally debilitated by its own revolution, signed an armistice, leaving great tracts of its territory in German hands.

The German lines on the Western Front never at any time cracked. Such was the German military prowess on the battlefield and such was the strength of German industry at home, that by 1916 Great Britain was considering asking for an armistice. Such was the punishment being inflicted upon France that the entire French army mutinied and sat down in 1917. It appeared as though Germany, like the U.S. South in the Civil War, might have been in a position to strike a permanent stalemate, favorable to itself, again, exactly like the Confederacy, the best it could possibly hope for.

The point being that to have gone on with this kind of mutual slaughter, with the best killing the best, with Christian nations at the throat of other Christian nations, could have been seen as nothing but sheer insanity.

But the Jews, having other interests, now entered the picture. "Loans" and "relief efforts" materialized to enable the killing to proceed. In the West, with regard to the Zionist Jews, England was encouraged to fight on, that the World Jews would secure the involvement of the United States - with fresh money and fresh blood - on the Allied side and thus end the stalemate.

The "deal" - known to history as the Balfour Declaration - was this: Germany's ally, the Turkish Empire, held Palestine. The Zionist Jews wanted this as it was their primary objective to restore Israel - geographically, at least - to serve as the seat of their eventual world government. They would give Britain the victory if Britain, in turn, would give Palestine over to them once the Turkish Empire had been dismantled.

In the East, the shambles that the war had made of the Russian army and economy had left the society and the government so weakened that the Bolshevik Jews saw their opportunity to strike. Millions of dollars from Jewish Wall Street bankers in New York poured into the Bolshevik coffers at this time. Germany, seeing the perfect chance to get an enemy out of the way, transported Lenin and his fellow conspirators out of exile in Switzerland, across Germany and into Russia expressly to foment revolution. But an identical action on the part of the Allies, i.e., allowing Trotsky and hundreds of Jewish communists from New York City's lower east side to travel by ship to Russia to bring down its government, can't be seen in the same light. This was the direct betrayal of an ally. Who now was really calling the shots?

The success of this Jewish take-over of Russia, as planned, took Russia out of the war. As mentioned, huge concessions were made by these Jews to the Germans... all the while knowing that it wouldn't last long. As far as Germany was concerned, this action freed up millions of troops to now travel to the Western Front and break the stalemate there, putting a final end to that mess. However, two things took place to thwart that hope.

One, the Jews made good on their promise to bring the United States into the war on the side of England and; Two, simultaneous strikes and riots within Germany on the part of communist Jews crippled German industry and morale. By the autumn of 1918, it was Germany who was now asking for an armistice - not a surrender - in order to stop the fighting and to avert a disaster at home as had been seen inside Russia the year before. This was sought by the Germans on the basis of Wilson's generous-sounding "Fourteen Points".

Instead of this, the Germans were ordered to abandon their well-fortified positions, to retreat home, to give up their navy to the British, to demolish their air force... Then, with the Allied blockade still in full force and German children dying of starvation, Germany was confronted with the criminally harsh conditions of the Versailles Treaty. The new government of traitors within Germany quickly signed their nation over into servitude but, in the ensuing years, most if not all of them were killed by patriots, thus echoing the sentiments of Robert E. Lee after the Confederate surrender in the Civil War.

Exactly like the fall of the Czar's government in Russia, the government of the Kaiser had been forced to abdicate due to communist revolt in the streets. It was traitors who had surrendered Russia and now it was traitors who were surrendering Germany. And it was racial Jews who made up the ranks of these traitors in both instances.

Now, while foolish and short-sighted White statesmen were gleefully punishing their White brothers who had fought so well but whom ill fortune had now overtaken, the Jews had plans of their own that were set to ride the crest of the wave. With the power of Jewish Zionism well-established in the West, their intention now was to sweep the East with their movement of communism. Where the cooperation and acquiescence of the nominally White rulers in the West was missing in the East (due to the greater awareness of the Jewish nature in the East), the opportunity was seized for the naked Jewish overthrow of Christian order and the forcible establishment of outright Jewish tyranny in these unfortunate lands, Germany to be included.

While communist revolts took place in almost every nation of central and eastern Europe, at the end of a period of desperately fought struggles - civil wars, in fact - the only place where communism held was in Russia itself. For the remainder, especially Germany, the international Jews had to content themselves for the time being with so-called "democracy" or, in this case, "social democracy", an avowed form of Marxism but one which wore a suit and tie and which pretended to placate all other political parties until such time as the hard-core communists felt strong enough to make another try at the seizure of total power.

For Germany in the twenties this spelled a time of terrible unrest, inflation, unemployment, corruption, anarchy... not to mention an influx of "carpetbaggers" - Jews - from around the world buying up German property, homes and businesses, once more, for mere cents on the dollar. All of it geared toward softening German morale and will in hopes of precipitating them, in their abject desperation, to stampede in favor of a communist take-over in hopes of gaining some relief from all of this. The prime movers behind this were Jews. And the average German would not forget it.

THE WORLD MENACE

I have made it a point to stay off of the simple business of wars and how they are fought, that is, those very same "names, dates and places", in this book because, as horrific as the mass killing on the field certainly is, it has ever been thus. It's what ENGINEERED all the killing and toward what GOAL it was engineered which matters. Because that's all that ever really changes. In science, one tends to isolate and then overlook the "constants" and, instead, pay close attention to that which is different or otherwise outstanding. To do it any other way is to get lost, stay lost and waste every minute of your time learning nothing.

The parties involved in the First World War were all about on the same footing, that is, they were each nations of the West, each one Christian and each one White. There really was no racial issue or issue of national sovereignty involved here. It was madness, however, and the only ones to have gained from it were the Jews. The people of Russia, the former Austrian Empire and Germany were, in fact, denied their own forms of government, or I should say, their common form, by the collapse of their infrastructures and their economies due to the pressures of the war which, in turn, opened the way for Jewish revolts to topple everything, replacing it with their own brand of dictatorship. This had come as a result of an alien presence within that had been simmering for a long time, just awaiting its moment.

Even mainstream historians have called it a pity that it had to go the way it did, i.e., so overly long and then so bitter at the end, because, otherwise, the old structures of Central and Eastern Europe might have survived and a more peaceful transition might have taken place. Transition to what? Why their own kind of "democracy" in the West, naturally. These same historians claim that, unlike the much more stable institutions in the West, the ones in the East were too brittle to withstand the strain of war and the shock of defeat. But they overlook the Jewish factor.

Unlike in the West, the East possessed huge numbers of Jews, millions of them, in fact. And whereas in the West the Jews might conspire and work alongside greedy and sold-out Whites for secret control, in the East they remained largely unassimilable and, while conspire they certainly did, they had numbers enough of their own to act in a violent and precipitous way, that was, when the general atmosphere was sufficiently chaotic. Simply put, they had it together while no one else on the scene did.

It isn't easy to obtain historical works from the revisionist side. Nonetheless, they do exist and in abundance. They are most scholarly and supremely well-documented. Their facts are never challenged. They simply are blacked out, submerged and ignored. That, however, does not change reality. It only makes it well nigh impossible for anyone to deal with reality effectively or on an appropriate basis. That would be one very good reason for the mess in the world that has only been worsening for the past hundred years or so.

Jewish conspiracy; Jewish take-over; Jewish dictatorship. These things the average person has an almost impossible time wrapping their brain around. There are those, like the Jews themselves, who will lie about it. But in the early years of the Soviet government, too much knowledge of this kind, and any voicing of it, would get you killed, usually in some horrible manner. So there are those who will deny it out of fear. And I mean over here, in the "free" West because, as you know fully well yourself, such talk can get you, at the very least, fired from your job. And then there are the plain ignorant. But out of the latter two groupings, over the seventy-year course of Soviet rule in Russia, some thirty million were killed as part of governmental policy.

I've often posed in the past: Why lie? In this work I've briefly delved into part of the reasoning for that. It is to conceal from a potential "mark" your actual intentions for him. Here is one I've not as yet tackled: Why kill? Every spectrum has two opposite ends. In the case of a nation having awakened to the threat of an alien minority within it, that cause would be to protect itself. And I find this to be fully justified. But, in the case of that same minority, once having seized the reins of control over a hapless majority, to murder wholesale in order to, first, eliminate the former elite class of leadership and, second, to cow into submission the broad masses, I find to be repugnant in the extreme. Why? Well, we see how the Soviet "experiment" ended up. A dismal flop. The damage done to the Russian people and the Russian state probably is irreparable. The process of killing on the part of this parasitic minority went against the natural flow of nature, as indeed did and still does the whole premise of Marxism.

We've discussed how "Jews" came into being. They are a hybridization, an unnatural crossing of human types. They can be recognized physically. Can it be doubted that their very thought processes aren't effected also? They see the world differently, distortedly. Evidence of this starts with the delusion that they are "God's Chosen People". A reader of competent abilities needs go no further than the Bible itself for confirmation of this. It was God who stated that he would permit them "strong delusion". An error. But an error locked onto rock-solidly, with zeal and fanaticism. Anytime one finds a condition like that, he may be sure that terrible trouble is on the way.

I maintain that a condition such as that is a matter of blood, genetic, and not a matter of "religion", "doctrine" or anything else. Proof of this enters with the phenomenon of communism, or Marxism. No God involved here. The Communist Manifesto was whipped up by the Jew, Karl Marx, at the behest of other Jews who at the time made up the Illuminati. Here was the idea of Jews coming to rule the world simply by virtue of their own ruthlessness and cunning. It appealed to Jews everywhere. With the proper sugar coating, it began to appeal to more and more alienated and/or air-headed Whites. The coloreds of the world simply ate it up and still do.

It amounts to the philosophy - as the basis of the conspiracy - of the overthrow of the natural, Godly order of things on earth and its replacement by the distorted and impossible vision of the Jews. "Equality". Make it sound "pretty", "just", "fair", etc., and then employ all manner of lying, twisting, violence, terror and murder to MAKE it so. Rewrite the laws. Turn the media and the educational system into mills churning out only fantasies, lies and distortions. Turn the police loose on all dissenters. And, once more, I'm not even referring here to Russia, I'm talking about the United States in the present day. BUT, after all of this has run its course, prepare for the collapse and the death of the society itself, exactly as in Russia.

Many will at this point say that, even should most of that be true, the Soviet Union is a dead letter and we shouldn't worry any longer. Most will have been brought up believing that communism was/is merely some form or other of economic or social doctrine. That and nothing more. We've discussed the largely unknown Jewish aspect of it. Now for the rest...

"We must realize that our Party's most powerful weapon is racial tension. By propounding into the consciousness of the dark races that for centuries they have been oppressed by the whites, we can mould them to the program of the Communist Party. In America, we will aim for subtle victory. While inflaming the Negro minority against the whites, we will instill into the whites a guilt complex for their exploitation of the Negroes. We will aid the Negroes to rise to prominence in every walk of life, in the professions and in the world of sports and entertainment. With this prestige, the Negro will be able to inter-marry with the whites and begin a process which will deliver America into our hands."

That is a direct quote from "A Racial Program For the Twentieth Century" by one Israel Cohen, a Jew in England, written in 1912. And THAT is the true nature, the bottom line, of communism. Sound at all familiar?

But the result of the First World War was that the old, Christian order of Europe and even America was swept away practically overnight. The killing was one thing, the revolutions were another. But the social changes even in the West, i.e., women in the factories, Blacks under arms, etc., did just as much to undermine things. The Thousand Years of Christ were fast approaching their end. The world was set to go down before the Jewish juggernaut of communism. It was planned, it was intended, and it looked for all the world to be succeeding. To a gambler, it would have appeared to be a safe bet.

It is difficult if not impossible for the average person today to realize just how "respectable" communism was in that era, especially in the West. Its actual nature being carefully concealed from the masses of dumb "goyim" - that is, Yiddish for "cattle" - in the nations of the West. For the most part, it was the so-called "Ivy Leaguers", the spoiled and bored intellectual jet set over here which became enthralled by this Marxist garbage but which, nonetheless, were to become the new generation of leaders. It was seen to be "progressive". And, if one were to be sucked in and fooled by so-called "higher education" at that time and even the media then, it was considered as the "wave of the future".

The single greatest exponent of this phenomenon was Franklin Roosevelt, soon to become President of the United States, together with the gang he brought to Washington, D.C., with him known as the "New Dealers". They mirrored the same evil melange as the worst represented by Lenin and his "sealed train" or Trotsky and his boatload of kikes. It was a Marxist-Socialist revolution here in America which swept itself to power under the cover of the panic of the Great Depression. (The Depression itself having been deliberately triggered by Wall Street Jews in order to "redistribute" the wealth of the United States.)

Here it is useful to go again to the dictionary for the definition of the word "image". For Roosevelt remains to this day a most revered "image". While they've been tearing down the statues of Stalin, etc., new ones of Roosevelt are going up. "To call up a mental picture of: to describe or portray in words: to create a representation of: reflect: mirror: to make appear: project." Thanks to the loving care taken of Roosevelt by the Jewish-controlled media, the U.S. public didn't even realize that he was crippled by polio. The media, the image-makers. He was theirs and they were his. It is the IMAGE people saw then and which they remember now. Not the reality.

A smiling, pleasant and reassuring Roosevelt spouting direct lies or otherwise worthless platitudes versus a stern and sober, uniformed Hitler shouting vital truths. Toss in the language barrier and it is, as they say, a "no-brainer". Sweet lies versus harsh truths. All a matter of image.

To cinch the matter, a Jewish lineage was traced in his ancestry and, when asked about this, he declared that he was quite proud of it. Roosevelt represented the living, breathing apotheosis of this very same Anglo-Jewish conspiracy that I spoke of earlier. To this day, he remains the "god" of all crypto-communists everywhere. What happened in this country and subsequently in the rest of the world as the result of this individual's having come to power has to render him as historically the most evil personage of the entire twentieth century and perhaps beyond.

It needs to be appreciated by the average person the dilemma that was faced by these world conspirators. Whereas in the Soviet Union, the cream of White, Christian society, any dissenters, etc., could simply be murdered by the millions - exactly as they were by the Jewish secret police - in the West, care had to be taken instead to dupe the White populace, to lull them to sleep. This so as not to possibly provoke any strong reaction to the poisonous and alien programs that were being introduced. This so that these same poisons might have the chance to silently overtake them, over time, bringing them and their society to a state of eventual helplessness to resist. Here Roosevelt's smiling face and the Jewish media played the critical role: Lies and false imagery.

It worked wonders then. It continues to this day. It succeeded in sweeping the nations of the earth at the time... Except in one crucial instance.

ADOLF HITLER AND THE NSDAP

As even the Jews have often stated in their versions of the period, Adolf Hitler was the one thing that was not planned, was not "supposed" to have happened. What else are we to take this to mean other than not having been planned by them? Furthermore, by direct inference, everything else had been planned, evidently, by them.

They hated this man from the very first, before his party was of any note or had been able to "do" anything about the Jews. Before any war and certainly before any so-called "Holocaust". Because by the time he had gained any voice at all, which was very early on, what he had to say was hauntingly, disturbingly reminiscent of another man who'd come from out of nowhere two thousand years earlier to upset their plans.

Lenin, the Bolshevik mastermind of revolution, had outspokenly targeted Germany all along as being international communism's prime objective on the path to the literal conquest of the White, Christian world. Russia had there for the taking like an overripe plum. But Hitler had sized that up in 1924, the year he wrote Mein Kampf and also the year in which Lenin died, when he observed that Russia, minus its Germanic overlords that now had been all but exterminated by the Jewish Bolsheviks, couldn't possibly progress very far with the Jews at the helm and would, one day, collapse of its own, impossible rottenness. It took a while but it did happen exactly the way Hitler said it would.

The danger that existed then was the very real and seemingly imminent threat of a communist takeover of Germany - legalistic or otherwise - and then a linking up between the two against the Christian West. History shows us how incredibly well Germany performed militarily in the Second World War, essentially alone and against the might of the rest of the world, including the Soviet Union. Imagine the two of them having been linked together under communism. But how, you say? Remember it is the victors who will write the history. Remember there were traitors aplenty in the highest echelons all throughout the West who would have welcomed just such a thing as this.

Mainstream historians talk on about the common masses, the workers, the ex-soldiers, having been so disillusioned by the capitalists and by the war they supposedly had brought that they were more than ready for some alternative. They neglect to mention that it was largely the Jews who were behind both runaway capitalism and the war and who were now the ones offering the so-called "alternative" of Marxism. Remember, control both sides and it's hard to lose. That would be, of course, unless some third choice manifests itself in the meantime.

But first there had been Benito Mussolini in Italy. He had been deeply, actively involved in Marxist Socialism for years. He had been largely responsible for Italy's entry into the First World War on the Allied side, not the side of the Central Powers as Italy had been bound to do by treaty. But at one point he became disillusioned with the communists, broke with them, and went on to form his own Fascist Party. With great speed, he and his Fascists assumed power in Italy, more or less peacefully and with the blessings of the monarchy. His government still stands as the most stable modern Italy has ever enjoyed. And of Mussolini's break with the conspiracy and his taking of political power in 1922, Lenin said, "When we lost Mussolini, we lost Italy."

Of Mussolini, Hitler commented that had it not been for his demonstration of will, he (Hitler) would have never dared dream it would be possible to successfully resist communist takeover in Germany. For their part, the communists wouldn't forget any of this, either.

Historic similarities between the Weimar period in Germany, that is, from the end of the First World War in 1918 to the dawn of the Third Reich in 1933, and the Reconstruction period in the U.S. South are worth studying. First, the imposed conditions were so very punitive. Insanely, stupidly so. Second, it all came so suddenly to the respective populations involved. On the one hand, the Allies were out of their minds with thoughts of vengeance toward a valiant and honorable foe who had resisted the weight of the rest of the world for so long with practically super-human ability, indeed knowing that it might just as easily have been them coming to the armistice table instead had it not been for their deal with the Devil. On the other hand, the secret powers at work behind the scenes intended by this to so weaken Germany that a successful communist revolt could eventually take it over, thus keeping their international strategy on course. But, just as with the U.S. South following the Civil War and the conditions imposed upon it by the radicals of the North, the people themselves were by no means ready to accept it. Where the institutions failed, the people themselves held.

The differences between the original KKK and the new Nazi Party (National Sozialisten Deutsche Arbeiter Partei, or National Socialist German Workers Party) are basic and important. As soon as the situation was under control again and normalized in the U.S. South, the KKK disbanded. The object of the NSDAP in Germany was total political power. Though often outlawed from wearing their uniforms, from holding their meetings, from demonstrating and even from speaking, the Nazis were always fully open in their dealings. Should the Brownshirt be banned, they would wear white shirts or no shirts at all in fairer weather. Should the NSDAP be banned from meeting or demonstrating, a front name would be temporarily employed. Should Hitler personally be banned from speaking, a lieutenant would speak in his place. And so on and so forth it went for fourteen hard-fought years.

The U.S. South actually was fond of its Blacks. Many Blacks fought for the Confederacy just as many fought for the Union. The majority of Blacks soon realized that they'd had a much better deal under the old masters than they now had under this new regime. "Forty acres and a mule", indeed. After all, when one has a fourteen-hundred-dollar investment (the cost of a single slave in 1861 dollars) he naturally tends to take good care of it. Afterward, just as today, Blacks are throw-away commodities. Cheap labor, voting blocs, a stand-by market for drugs, a cash crop to be regularly harvested for the prison-industrial complex. But most important and sinister of all, the element mainly to be used in destroying White culture, White society and White blood. Some even have postulated that, had the South somehow managed to have stalemated the Civil War and to have survived intact, this process of degeneration which we see would have occurred at even a faster rate than it has. (Look at where "Rock 'n' Roll" originally emanated from.)

The Nazis in Germany, on the other hand, had as part of the concrete basis of their political program a fully conscious and aware Racial State, a Germany for Germans alone. And here enters matters of labor and economics. These were the very areas where Hitler, in truth, beat the pants off of the communists by offering his people real solutions to their problems, and proceeded to win millions and millions of otherwise good Germans back to the cause of their own blood and their own country. He, in effect, co-opted the communists by his use of a red banner and his use of the term "socialist". He beat the communists at their own game and he took power, legally and peacefully, in Germany on January 30th, 1933.

The World Enemy Jews were shocked and horrified. They were also outraged and with a taste for blood in their mouths.

You see, the Jews had affected a revolution in Germany also in 1918 just as they had done in Russia. It did bring down the monarchy as it had done in Russia. It did bring the war effort to a standstill as it had done in Russia. It did bring financial ruin and social chaos. But the German people and the German army were of a different sort and the ultimate prize - naked Jewish dictatorship - just couldn't quite be realized as it had been done in Russia. As stated before, after some wild months and years, they were required to fall back upon the more tame and "respectable" social democracy until they could manage to further their real plans.

People don't realize that there had been a civil war fought across Russia during the 1920s. The cause of the "Whites", as the pro-Czarist forces called themselves, might have succeeded in throwing out the communists had it not been for two things: No central leadership; And a significant Jewish population which rose as a body in arms to support the communist cause.

However, the average person on the street in Germany at this same time saw and knew who and what it was that had betrayed his country in the first place and who now was oppressing it through the use of his international capital and his own, peculiar brand of social, cultural and political degeneracy. That average person was more than ready for Hitler just as soon as Hitler and his organization were in position and ready to act. Remember, this had never been done before and it certainly has never been done since: A nation falls and is seized physically by the very body of Satan, the Jews. But then it manages to awaken, to resist, to save itself and throw Satan out!

Consider it that way instead of the scenario, the tripe dished up by the Jews themselves in their controlled, lying press. Then imagine the degree of hatred on the part of Satan as he goes about plotting his revenge... Revenge upon an entire nation.

Returning to certain key similarities between the South and Germany: Hitler's government very politely and quite legally took Germany out of the newly-formed League of Nations which was the forerunner of today's United Nations, the body by which World Jewry intends to dominate and rule the world. He at the same time took Germany out of the world economy and, in short order, had Germany out of the world-wide Depression as a result. Both of these daring and revolutionary actions because they directly challenged the concept of national sovereignty. This was not only resistance to the upcoming New World Order (those words which Roosevelt had just placed on the one-dollar bill in Latin) but it was demonstrating the policies of that New World Order to be an unworkable FRAUD upon the peoples of the world to the benefit of the Jews. Of course, they knew they couldn't permit it to continue.

Already by 1933, Jewish headlines were proclaiming, "Judea Declares War On Germany!" In answer to this, Hitler ordered staged the one-day boycott of Jewish shops inside Germany. The latter still being splashed everywhere by the Jewish media. The former you've probably never heard anything about.

Finally and perhaps most important, the world hasn't seen men - people - of this calibre in a very long while. Not the White world, anyhow. To attempt to get into the minds and the hearts of people like these - the U.S. South and NS Germany - would be like attempting to understand some extra-terrestrial species from space. And when I speak of the average German in these terms, I might as well at the same time be speaking of the average American, Briton, Frenchman, etc. For, you see, we as a people, the White race, had arrived at a great crossroads together, all of Western, Christian civilization. People just don't act out of honor anymore. Everything is a compromise. And you know who and what it is that is being compromised with.

It was now a question of which way the West was going to go into the future. Well, we certainly see which way it DID go. But it is that other way, the way represented by the Lost Cause, that we're concerned with here.

LIES & HYSTERIA

There's a story which has it that the official language of the newly-formed United States of America just missed being German by a tiny vote margin at the Continental Congress. How THAT would have altered history! During the time that the U.S. was overwhelmingly White, the German element represented fully one-fourth of that, even more than the Anglo-Saxons. But if hysteria through lies could do its work against the native-born and English-speaking people of the Southern States, how much easier then for it to work its evil against distant Germany? All that the average American was shown - all that he was allowed to know - was this strange man wearing a military uniform and speaking and gesturing in a language he couldn't understand. How very easy to present that as a "menace".

The Jews in their own accounts of Hitler and the Third Reich have expressed their upset at his having come along and "spoiled" the good time they were having at Germany's expense all throughout the decade of the twenties. The Hollywood film, "Cabaret", reveals much of the actual situation the way it was with, at the end, a room full of Brownshirts who are not amused one bit.

They never tire of calling Hitler a "dictator" and his regime one of "tyranny". However, after the fourteen-year Kampfzeit - or Time of Struggle - when Hitler and his Party had settled the dust, all of the deliberate and managed confusion of the Jews and their Weimar Republic, Germany was consistently found to be in the high-nineties, percentage-wise, in agreement with Hitler and his policies. This is not "dictatorship". This is what is called cutting the crap, doing the RIGHT thing minus any delay or useless debate and standing for no obstructions. But the Jews were OUT and they, of course, to the rest of the world, had to call it something else.

Imagine the exhilarating and refreshing nature of a leader and a government actually calling it like it is and then taking the direct action to rectify any and every situation, all in the shortest possible time! Crime, wiped out. Communism, wiped out. Unemployment, wiped out. Concentration camps took care of a lot. Programs like the National Labor Service took care of a lot more. With their hands on the government, Hitler and his National Socialists were going to set things right without further delay and end the suffering of the German people... And to HELL with polite methodology.

Dictatorship? How about the Roosevelt clique who had to lie to the American public and rely upon the Jewish media to soft-soap the public into going along with programs of Marxist Socialism? Programs which, in the end, did not work. But Roosevelt and his "chinless wonders" didn't "look" like what dictators were supposed to look like. All imagery.

To be sure, there was emergency here at home in the form of the deepening Great Depression. At its worst the year Roosevelt took office and now generally considered to be the worst crisis in U.S. history since the Civil War. But that emergency was as naught when compared to the forces and the dangers that were at that time raging in Europe. Were there deaths by starvation here in the 1930s? Perhaps. I've not seen any figures on it. But in Germany, before Hitler took power, every third German infant was dying of malnutrition. "Arbeit, Freiheit und Brot!" was the NSDAP election slogan. "Work, Freedom and Bread!" And they delivered on this promise.

But emergency is the climate we have to understand for these events as only it can explain most things. These men of the NSDAP, just like the men of the Old South, of the KKK, were unlike what we see today. They took hearth and home, family and nation - and honor - most seriously. And, conversely, they took all threats to these things equally seriously. These were still the times of death before dishonor and of the regret of having but one life to lay down. This is all gone now. It's hard to understand the motivations of those people, in that place at that time. The Jews will tell you that it all was done out of insane criminality. You'll have to balance that up, if you care to and if you can.

You - the German nation in 1933 - have just narrowly managed to pull Satan from your throat and are now, through governmental legislation, de-clawing and de-fanging him, dispossessing him, branding him and "belling" him, as it were. You still see the bloodbath that is ongoing inside Russia - who was unable to throw him off. Russia, who once was the breadbasket of the world and whose name now represents only famine. After all of this, I assure you, you are not merely going to return to a condition of "business as usual".

The very fabric of your society has nearly been totally wrecked by fourteen years of the effects of "social democracy", on the one hand, and by the effects of the titanic struggle in the streets between you and the Communist Party on the other. You have sworn all along that not a moment shall be wasted to the reestablishing of true social order once you have the chance. And, once again, to HELL with so-called "civil liberties".

And you have known and recognized all along the culprits responsible for all of this tragedy to your people and your country from the very beginning. Your land and your people - and your honor - have suffered grievously because of them. Your millions of brave war dead have been mocked by them. Now that you're back in charge of your own nation, it is not your intention to just "let it go".

Of course we well know how all of this reaction was presented to the gullible people of the United States who were given - then and now - only the Jews' side of the story. Imagery, especially on the screen, is so terrifyingly powerful. It amounts to the "lying wonder" mentioned in the Bible.

Your country has been disarmed by its enemies. It has historically been ringed by powerful and hostile neighbors. The Soviet Union is busy building the greatest army and air force in the world, as large or larger than all of the rest in the world combined. For what purpose? And it already sits astride fully one-sixth of the land surface of the globe. You begin to re-arm yourself. This is presented by the Jewish media as "militarism". It is painted by them as a "threat".

Your former colonial holdings in Asia and Africa have been seized by your wartime enemies, completely illegally and with total impunity. Great stretches of your homeland have been torn away and given over to, once again, hostile neighbors who now are persecuting the Germans left there as the new minority. Austria, your brother nation, who has expressly desired to become one with you ever since the close of the First World War and the break-up of the Austrian Empire, has been prevented from so doing by, again, those same hostile neighbors, the victors of World War One. And so you force the promised "plebiscites", the popular referendums, that had been assured and the resident populations vote overwhelmingly to join - or re-join - you, legally. And this is presented by the Jewish press as "aggression".

And race, national integrity. Quite basically, the Nuremberg Laws of 1935 went a long way toward catching Germany up with the laws that were already on the books in the United States... with the crucial exception of the formal exclusion of the Jews from national life. If a people can't take the steps necessary to protect itself and its posterity then what future can it possibly hope to have?

They mocked then and they still do today the concept of the "Master Race". Europe and America - the Whites of the world - held in absolute subjection the rest of the colored world with the exceptions of China and Japan. Whatever civilization, technology, culture, etc., as existed, existed only due to the White race. Whatever order and decency as existed had come only from the Whites. And so, a "Master Race"? I should think that if anything were "self-evident" in this world, that would be it. But no, the Jews had to twist Hitler's words and present them to the American public as meaning only GERMANS, to the exclusion of all the other White nations.

But, by now, one should be able to see why they cannot leave the truth alone and why it is they must lie in order to maintain the IMAGE of a reality which suits them and their skewed take on the universe.

Once more, a dangerous crossroads had been reached by all the nations of the West, collectively. They were ALL racist, or at least race-conscious, at that time. White society was just that, White society. Only a lunatic or a liar would have seen it or desired it otherwise. But only Germany had the sense to NAIL IT DOWN once they had expelled their deadliest enemies, the Jews.

The situation as it was in the United States, with a "Jim Crow" system of segregation - "Separate But Equal" - taken together with a growing degree of Jewish influence plus a general deterioration of the cultural standards, was like unto a sodden dam about to burst. Burst it did, as we well know to our sorrow. To have dealt with the problem positively, intelligently and decisively - then as now - supposedly is tantamount to vile "hate". Jewish spin, once more.

And, as though to put the icing on top of the cake, this same gang of radicals in Germany went running around in colorful and spiffy uniforms, making of themselves the easiest of marks for the Jewish accusers as "super-villains" in the style of their recent invention over here, the comic books.

THE SPARK OF WAR

The hysteria was well in place. Now only a spark, a ruse, any excuse at all was needed to set into motion open war which would be that element that would suit the purpose of the Jews the best. That spark would be provided, as it would turn out, by the actions of an overly zealous, new - as of 1919 - Polish Republic.

Poland had been granted renewed independence by the victors at Versailles who then proceeded to carve huge tracts of land from out of the former empires of Germany, Russia and Austria to provide land for the new state. The Poles had acquitted themselves well in 1920 when they defeated the Red Army before Warsaw. And it was generally known and understood that the Poles were far and away the most anti-Jewish people in Europe.

During the years of the partition of Poland, the bulk of its territory was within what had been called the Pale of Settlement, that was, the western-most stretch of the old Russian Empire. It was here that the Jews were confined by royal decree. Because of this, Poland had a larger percentage of Jews within its boundaries than any other nation in the world. Jews had not only come to dominate economic life in Poland, but, by their sheer weight of numbers, were threatening to literally outnumber Poles in many of their own cities and towns. For this and other reasons, they were hated.

Up until the death in 1935 of the Polish hero-statesman, Pilsudski, Germany and Poland had maintained a pact of friendship. And even though Pilsudski's successors proved to be far more anti-Jewish, they were far more recklessly nationalistic, especially where Germany was involved.

Hitler generously offered to make its territorial losses to Poland permanent and without question, thus guaranteeing Poland's future existence, upon three most reasonable conditions: One, that the German minority trapped inside of Poland's new boundaries be allowed to leave for Germany proper; Two, that the so-called "free city" of Danzig, a German port city placed under Polish administration after the war, be returned to German control and; Three, that an extra-territorial railway and highway be established between Germany and East Prussia, its province which had been cut off by the Versailles Treaty, across Polish soil.

Built up by French assurances, the Poles not only rejected this offer but began talking in terms of militarily expanding even further westward onto German soil, up to the present-day Oder-Neisse Line, a mere hundred miles from Berlin.

In fact, both Britain and France were assuring the Poles of their complete backing should hostilities erupt. And so, once more, it was blind, narrow nationalism which led the way toward the virtual destruction of Europe and the occupation of European territory by armies from outside of Europe, not to mention the placing of collaborationist governments over the respective European nations by these same outside forces.

Yet all the talk was then and as yet remains only of "liberation". Hypocrisy and lies at their very height.

The Germans, for their part, cited a raid by Polish regulars upon the German town of Gleiwitz. The Jewish media claims that this is a lie, that it was all staged by the Germans as their excuse to begin aggression. However, the Germans at no time needed to lie and had thus far never resorted to aggression. Rather, I think that this incident was only the last straw of provocation that Germany was willing to accept. Germany moved to the rescue of its people on September 1st, 1939, in Blitzkrieg fashion.

The "Blitzkrieg", or "Lightning War", had been outlined by Hitler in Mein Kampf as the most humane way of fighting a war, that is, in the swiftest, most decisive manner possible, with the fewest deaths and the least destruction. Not only that but it was the only way in which a country so outnumbered and out-supplied could hope to win a war against essentially the rest of the world: Gain all the tactical victories before the opponent could bring all his weight to bear.

This was the courage and daring of the cavalier, of he who was bound by honor, despite any appearance of a potentially desperate situation, unlike anything which had been seen since the start of the American Civil War.

THE WAR IN REVISION

A number of secrets from the Second World War have emerged over the ensuing decades, all of which tend to shed real light on the actual nature of that event, making of it something far different than what the professional, official myth-makers have been making of it.

But first, a look at the over-all military situation in the spring of 1940 is most valuable. Germany found itself in a strategic position very much like that of the new "Israel" in June of 1967, that was, once more, ringed by a coalition of powerful enemies. If the Soviet Union represented a sixth of the earth's surface, then the British Empire represented fully one-quarter with the French Empire not very far behind. And there was the United States hovering in the background just behind the British.

You do not, cannot in a situation like that, wait for your enemies to come to you. Modern Israel certainly did not in 1967 and achieved rapid, startling successes in their "Seven-Day War" against the Arab States around them. Most of the world cheered at that time and the Jews were able to hold onto their gains. Naturally, this was all due to the Jews owning the media and having the United States in their hip pocket. Not so was the case with Germany in 1940.

In essence, the identically same scenario was made for Germany to look like naked aggression, indeed, the opening gambit toward "conquering the world". But, again, take a look at any historical map from the period and ask yourself: Who already had the world conquered?

Now to the "secrets" more lately disclosed. The first one of these has to do with code-breaking. Next to the Manhattan Project, the building of the atomic bomb, the Ultra secret was the most closely guarded one of the entire war. It is simply that the Allies, principally the British, had been able to read the German military codes practically from the very outset of hostilities. Their "Ultra" machine was capable of deciphering the Germans' "Enigma" encoder.

That's part of war, you say? Perhaps. But it not only explains the otherwise almost inexplicable string of losses on the part of the Germans, especially from 1943, onward, but it points up things much darker than that.

Militarily, Admiral Karl Doenitz had begun to suspect that his military codes were being read by the enemy after his U-boat losses in the Atlantic had risen alarmingly and suddenly. On his own initiative, he added an extra rotor to the navy's Enigma machines, thus throwing the British off temporarily, and U-boat losses went down accordingly.

Far more interestingly, however, would be the fact that the British were fully aware that the Germans intended no invasion of England, neither in 1940 nor at any other time. Hitler realized that his navy wasn't up to the task in the first place, plus his greatest desire had always been for a military alliance with Britain against the Soviet Union and for the defense of Western civilization in the whole world. Further conflict between these two brother nations would amount to a death-blow to all of that. Furthermore, Hitler had expressly forbidden any air attacks upon British cities, targeting strictly the air force bases as part of the attempt to bring the British to the peace table.

But there was a huge dilemma.

One more secret brought out by the revelation of Ultra was the true nature of Winston Churchill, who had become British Prime Minister in the spring of 1940. His was a "war cabinet". This man - partly Jewish as well as American Indian on his mother, Jenny Jerome's side - had been literally bought and paid for by World Jewry, specifically a group calling itself "The Focus", in 1938 when they bailed him out of bankruptcy on this condition: He was to re-enter politics following his decades in "the wilderness" due to his bungling and incompetence in the First World War which had cost the lives of tens of thousands of men, in which he would be aided by the Jewish press, and was to jockey for war with Germany, seizing upon any excuse whatsoever to maintain and to expand any such war, no matter what the cost.

Despite their full knowledge of the truth, Churchill and his crowd LIED to the British people, telling them that they were in imminent danger of invasion, then BAITED the German air force into attacking British cities as reprisal for British air attacks upon German cities, all in order to whip up popular sentiment for war. They withheld from the British people the peace offer extended to them by Hitler which would have guaranteed the existence of the British Empire as well as their national prosperity.

Perhaps the first secret to leak out about the Second World War, which was never much of a secret at all but which did also involve code-breaking, had to do with the attack upon Pearl Harbor by the Japanese. The significance of this, again, aside from the duplicity of "our own" governments, was in the fact that Germany, Italy and Japan had together signed the Anti-Comintern Pact - the "Comintern" meaning the Communist International - and, as such, were now allies, bound to come to one another's aid if attacked.

In this regard, Franklin Roosevelt knew that it was absolutely critical that he get the United States directly involved in the war against Germany in order to destroy National Socialism, further weaken Western civilization and further advance militant communism. In this cause he was using the stooge, Churchill, to hold open the back door to provide him the cover and the excuse of "saving Britain", "saving democracy", etc., until such time as he could involve the U.S. directly using one more pretext or other.

Should one happen to believe the lie that either Britain or the United States was ever "threatened" by Germany, then the more recent admissions of the gross illegalities committed by Roosevelt in aiding Britain militarily and attacking German ships in the Atlantic before December 7th, 1941, might be seen as justifiable. But in light of the reality of those very lies, how else could this be seen other than the very kind of aggression which the Germans are accused of? What, indeed, of the Allied occupation of countries such as Iceland, Iran, etc., at the same time?

Germany, for its part, was well aware of the intentions of the Roosevelt regime in its provocations and it wisely chose to ignore them for as long as it could. Germany knew the situation that it was in: Its early military successes against outnumbering foes had been nothing short of miraculous and had stunned - and angered - the Jews, much as had the South a century before. Germany knew that its one hope was to gain a successful stalemate before things got completely out of hand.

The average German soldier knew that, sooner or later, they would be fighting Britain, the Soviet Union and the United States. Britain, at least, was off the Continent for now. The United States could only intervene by proxy for the moment. The only one of these three which the Germans could reach with their army and hopefully knock out in a pre-emptive strike was the Soviet Union. A success in that area might bring the sought-after stalemate. Failure was unthinkable.

Still one more most curious and overlooked thing about the Second World War concerned the non-aggression pact between Germany and the Soviet Union. Fully realizing that Germany would never have involved itself in an immediate two-front war, that is, between East and West simultaneously, the Soviet government in the summer of 1939 provided the "green light" to the opening of hostilities by consenting to this treaty. To be sure, "baiting" assumes more than just one form.

But at the same time that Germany moved into Poland from the west, the Soviet Union moved in from the east. Not only that but into Finland that same year and into Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania and Romania the following year. And no declarations of war against the Soviet Union. Could it be any clearer? Germany knew that it was being set up and it chose to bide its moment.

In actuality, by 1941 Europe had already settled into an effective stalemate in Germany's favor. But the war refused to cease. Churchill was there to do his job of fanning the flames; Roosevelt not only wanted war, he needed it to lift the United States out of the Depression, a thing which his "New Deal" policies had failed to do; And Joseph Stalin was only awaiting the moment to roll across Europe with the tank divisions that he had already built up, because, just as he was the only enemy Germany could reach by land, he was the only potential enemy that could likewise reach Germany.

In most recent years the picture has been forming up ever more clearly that Britain had been within a hair's breadth of a coup d'etat that spring of 1941 as more and more upper-echelon British leaders - outside of the Churchill gang - were beginning to realize the gravity of the situation as well as the insanity (or criminality) of Churchill's policies.

It was secretly arranged for Rudolf Hess, who was Hitler's Deputy Fuhrer and close personal confidant, to be received by a gathering of British royalty as well as British politics in order to make sudden peace between the two brothers just prior to the German attack upon the Soviet Union. Toward this end, Hess had daringly, heroically flown solo and had parachuted over Scotland. The date was May 10th. The meeting was inexplicably muffed up, Hess was taken prisoner and held incommunicado until the end of the war when he was tried as a "war criminal" to spend the rest of his life in prison. The war would continue.

June 22nd saw the opening of operation Barbarossa, the attack upon the Soviet Union. Enough men and material were taken or destroyed, enough territory overrun in the opening weeks of the campaign to cause military experts, then and now, to categorically state that no other nation on earth could have sustained such losses and survived. But the Germans did encounter one surprise for which they were almost totally unprepared: The presence of thousands of Soviet T-34 tanks which nothing could stop. The Germans quickly learned to level anti-aircraft guns at them so they could be destroyed.

The popular myth surrounding this attack is that it caught the Soviets completely by surprise. Aside from the code-breaking already mentioned, there was the notorious Soviet spy, Richard Sorge, a German stationed in Tokyo, who is known to have passed along the exact details to Moscow. Finally, it was the capture of Soviet General Vlasov in the spring of 1942 that cinched the matter. Vlasov flatly declared that it had been the intention of the Soviet Union to attack Germany in the fall of 1941, utilizing all of that vast array of men and arms that the Germans had wiped out that same summer. (Vlasov went on to command a Russian army of national liberation alongside the Germans that would eventually come to number some two million volunteers.)

Bait and blackmail. Germany was faced with the choice of either taking out this dire threat through a preemptive strike - thus making it appear as "aggression" - or of allowing it to descend upon Europe like a rain of steel. Seeing what it became like by 1944 and 1945, with Soviet tanks loose in Europe, there can be no doubt that Germany took the only logical course at the time.

But, once more, spectacular military success which was completely unexpected not only stunned the rest of the world but caused the communist government to evacuate Moscow and flee toward the east.

On the opposite side of the world, Japan was deeply engaged in war with China and had been so from the mid-thirties. Once more, Roosevelt, realizing Japan was allied with Germany, had been goading the Japanese in an attempt to get them to "throw the first punch", as it were, against the United States in order to provide the excuse for which Roosevelt was seeking to enter the war as an open belligerent.

If the nations of the West understood honor yet at that time, then the Japanese took it to the nth degree with their code of Bushido. An oil embargo together with a written ultimatum to the Japanese to quit China was all it took. Once more, the Japanese codes having been read in advance, the attack was known to be coming. Japanese diplomats in Washington had attempted to deliver a notice that relations between the two nations were now severed and that war was imminent. But this was deliberately bandied about by Washington bureaucrats until after the attack.

American forces in Hawaii and in the Philippines were not warned of the impending strike by the Japanese. They were left there, in place, as sitting ducks - bait - to further entice the Japanese. And once more, the opening, the excuse for war. Now the American public, just as the British before and then the Russians, could be convinced that they had been unprovokedly attacked and were enraged and ready to go and kill what they believed was a mortal enemy. The madness was now approaching full-scale.

Hitler honored his pact with Japan and declared war upon the United States. While U.S. positions were being overrun in the Pacific and U.S. troops were running out of ammunition, by mutual agreement, the vast bulk of American supplies were going to Europe. German troops were now seeing the Soviets riding in Jeeps, etc.

THE FINAL "FINAL SECRET" OF WORLD WAR TWO

To cold-bloodedly start a war may be one thing. But to open your own country up to devastating losses deliberately has got to be seen as something else entirely. The information included in the preceding chapter may be checked in any good library. It is real. I am not one to get focused on individual details and remain fixed there. Indeed, there is clearly a pattern here. Put the pieces together and what picture do they form?

Though each one of the separate incidents I have written about can be verified independently, there is no work in existence, to my knowledge, which ties them all together and presents the one inescapable conclusion.

A major portion of the globalist scheme - both communist and capitalist - involves financial planning. The so-called "brain trust" at work on this goes back to the early decades of the twentieth century and before. Over here, at least, these include your Harvard and Yale people. No idiots, to be sure. With a little use of the slide rule, it would have been relatively easy to ascertain the vast, practically limitless industrial and economic potential of the United States and the Soviet Union, that is, once their respective populations had been properly "motivated" and "harnessed". Hitler, without the use of a slide rule, declared in Mein Kampf in 1924 that these represented - along with China - the "super-powers" of the future. He turned out to have been 100% correct.

Who was it that said it was an art to do one thing and accomplish two? Arrange to take out your political opposition in the world and, at the same stroke, generate a massive, previously unheard-of economy in the process. War production. And recall that the world remained on a permanent war footing from that time, onward.

As to the losses incurred by first baiting and then allowing an enemy force to make military gains against you, again, take another look at any map. The British government was prepared to fall back upon Canada and continue the war. The Soviets had all of Siberia in which to do this same thing. The United States mainland was unassailable in any case. Though Britain did not have the limitless manpower and wealth for such a protracted war, the Soviet Union and the United States did. These losses, precisely as with the Civil War, meant absolutely nothing.

Soon after the war began, Stalin ordered all Soviet industry to be dismantled and then reestablished thousands of miles east, behind the Ural Mountains. It was said that, by 1943, the Soviet Union alone was out-producing Germany. And, again, none of the factories of either the Soviet Union or the United States could be reached by enemy bombers, unlike those of Germany. Hermann Goering, head of the German Luftwaffe, on trial for his life after the war, said that no one could have dreamt of the colossal industrial potential of the United States at the time.

Events over the course of the sixty-years-plus since the end of the war would tend to indicate positively the total lack of value placed by these systems - the communist and the capitalist - upon human life. Revisionist works exist which prove that they deliberately triggered the Great Depression itself and took care to tip off their own that it was about to take place so that they might shield themselves and their fortunes from its effects. Why not war to remove, once and for all, their political opposition and to reverse the negative economic trends they themselves had previously set in motion?

The cost? The suffering? The damage? Remember that the people at the very top of this were and still are committed to an absolutely insane and unreal agenda that has nothing to do with the well-being of the masses of people. It has only to do with the enrichment and the empowerment of a tiny few, according to whichever version of this "prophecy" - the Biblical or the Marxist - they happen to adhere to. In either case, it comes down to Jews. All the rest are mere "cattle" to be cut out of the herd and slaughtered at will.

Those at the very top of this pyramid of initiates in control of the world's governments fully understand all of this and have from the beginning and still do work hand-in-hand. For them, even the Cold War was known to be a charade. Just as with the organizational structure of the Masonic Lodge, the lower echelons are not allowed to know the full score as it is known to the levels above them. And so we may see now and again the sincere - or sincerely duped - communist or capitalist politician of East or West, respectively. Indeed, it was reported after the fall of communism in 1989 the suicides of some communist leaders in the East at the thought of the collapse of their "Utopian" system. They obviously had not been previously clued-in by the top bosses.

The lowest levels are naturally represented by the common people. They know only what they are told and care only about matters of immediate importance to themselves. Exactly as Hitler observed in Mein Kampf, they are virtually blank slates to be written upon by the dominate forces around them and we know who those "forces" are. However, they slave to produce the actual wealth and it is they who do the suffering and dying in any war.

Quite in contrast to the communist-capitalist outlook, the National Socialist outlook, weltanschauung, or worldview of Adolf Hitler, the common people themselves are the very reason for our actions. It is they who represent the gene pool from which has always come the only way to the fulfillment of White destiny.

Precisely here is the great, world contention.

DESTRUCTION

General Francisco Franco, the man who, with the indispensable aid of both Germany and Italy, saved Spain from international communism during the Spanish Civil War of 1936-1939, made this comment of the Second World War while it was still ongoing: It was his view that this really was three wars in one. The war in Western Europe ought to be negotiated into peace as quickly as possible for it was sheer folly for brother, Christian nations to be at war with one another; The war on the Eastern Front should be fought to a victorious conclusion by Germany as the opponent there was atheistical communism; The war in the Pacific should be fought to a victorious conclusion by the United States as, here again, the enemy was a colored and also atheistical entity.

Franco's vision was indeed a most idealistic one. I find it extremely hard to believe that a man such as this, who had grappled with the Devil himself and had beaten him in his own country, could not recognize the larger pattern, the truly grand strategy of this same Devil who has ever shown himself to-be anything but a gracious loser in a fair fight.

Once more, for all those "names, dates and places", the statistical run-downs on all those battles, etc., go to any public library. I prefer instead to perform a far greater service by deflating and debunking all of the popular myth by breaking it down to its bottom lines.

Code-breaking notwithstanding, by the time the military tide had turned against Germany the odds had become twenty-to-one and a-ton-to-an-ounce. The only wonder is that Germany managed to hold out as long as it did. At that, it took the Western Allies six months to recover the same ground that Hitler took in six weeks, even while he was still outnumbered and out-gunned. And they could only do it by grinding everything to a pulp from the air in the process... friend and foe alike. Some "liberation" with Europe now overran and occupied by forces from without Europe, neatly divided in half by the two new "super-powers".

Britain, for its part, was completely bankrupt and entirely dependent upon the United States for sustenance, totally incapable of acting independently. Its great empire began to break up by 1947. Some "victory".

Mainstream historians invariably point to Stalingrad as the "turning point" in the war. This is not the case. Just as in the winter of 1941-1942, the German army dug itself in and held out until the spring in what Hitler dubbed "hedgehog" formations. Stalingrad became one of these "hedgehogs" in the winter of 1942-1943. They were ordered to hold to the last so that the rest of the front might be stabilized. Though that army group did finally fall in February of 1943, the front did stabilize and Germany again went on the offensive in the spring.

Operation Citadel in July of 1943 was the greatest clash of armor in all history. It was designed to pinch off and destroy the Kursk salient, a Soviet bulge in German lines still deep within Soviet territory, and - hopefully - achieve the goal of the invasion itself: The pushing back of the communist forces behind the Ural Mountains and holding them there. If anything, here was a true vision of a liberated Europe.

In the midst of battle, even as the Germans were making slow, painful gains against the Soviets and even though, again, their entire order-of-battle had been betrayed previously, Hitler had to draw off forces from the Eastern Front and dispatch them to the defense of his weaker ally, Italy, who was just then being invaded by the Western Allies. There was to be no decisive victory on the Eastern Front. The Germans, however, would manage to hold for another year.

The Soviet dictator, Joseph Stalin, himself of Turkic background but adopted and raised in the home of Lazar Kaganovich, one of the early and very major Jewish commissars of the Soviet Union, was alternately demanding and begging of the Western Allies that they open a "second front" against Germany in Western Europe, thus taking some of the intense pressure off the Red Army and, also, reassuring the paranoid Stalin that they were not, after all, in collusion with Germany as the failed Hess mission might have indicated. This the Allies dutifully tried in the summer of 1942 with the raid upon Dieppe. They were wiped out.

But by the summer of 1944, Germany was badly over-extended and unable to replace its losses. The German army might take out as many Red Army troops in a single encirclement as the United States lost in the entire Civil War but it was no use. The Allies of East and West now were fully geared-up with regard to their industrial output and this was the telling thing. The Allied terror raids from the air, the "thousand-bomber" raids which reduced German cities to ashes, were doing little to affect German industry which, itself, had largely been moved underground. German production reached its peak also in 1944 but it wasn't enough. What Allied dominance of the air had achieved was that nothing could move on the ground in the defense of Europe.

German defenses in the West had been stripped threadbare, with everything going to the East in frantic effort to hold off the Red Army. The great "D-Day" they never seem to get tired of - or wised-up to - was timed to coincide perfectly with a massive Soviet onslaught in the East. Europe - Germany (including Austria) and its allies in this civil war gone mad which included Italy, Finland, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, as well as break-away elements of Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia, plus volunteer divisions from every state in Europe - was caught in the pincers of the internationalist, one-world Jewish meat grinder. In the East, the front collapsed. In the West, boys of the Hitler Youth held the Allies in their beach heads for a month until Allied "carpet bombing" churned everything into a moonscape.

The movement among the high-placed traitors within Germany chose this moment also to strike by making a cowardly attempt against Hitler's life which only succeeded in killing a number of their unsuspecting brother officers. However, this same movement prematurely raised its head and was uncovered and rooted out ruthlessly. While confusion reigned, the challenge, "For or against Hitler?", got things rapidly sorted out. No sooner than had most of the conspirators of July 20th been apprehended, the fronts, both East and West, were stabilized once again and the previously pell-mell retreats were ended.

It came out at the trials of these highly-placed traitors - members of royalty, conservatives and career officers, etc. - that it had been their plan, following a successful coup d'etat, to strike a separate peace with the Soviet Union, delivering to communism Germany all in one piece, just like Lenin had said that he wanted. They undoubtedly pictured themselves as the new upper-echelon within this Sovietized Germany. They either forgot or never knew the fate of the Polish intelligentsia and officer corps which had surrendered to the Soviets in 1939: Thousands of them shot in the back of the head and dumped into unmarked, mass graves by the Jewish NKVD.

And yet all throughout this period the Soviets made repeated offers of a separate peace to the Hitler government in Berlin, in betrayal of their Western Allies. Each time these overtures were rebuffed by Germany. A question of honor. After the war, during the 1950s, the Soviets removed Rudolf Hess from his prison cell in Spandau, flew him to Moscow, and offered him his freedom, to be rejoined with his wife and son, if he would serve as their figurehead and call for all former National Socialists to now fall in line behind communism. He refused and returned to prison to be murdered in 1987 just before the Iron Curtain fell, just before he could have told his story to the world. Honor.

For one last time, Hitler, himself suspecting the compromise of his military code, put together one more great offensive by having all orders issued by word-of-mouth. The timing was for December of 1944 when heavy skies would make Allied air superiority almost meaningless. He would repeat the strike through the Ardennes Forest, right where it would be least expected, and right between British and American forces. Initially, the Rundstedt Offensive - better known to history as the "Battle of the Bulge" - ripped the Allies to pieces, causing panic in some sectors and causing Eisenhower to be confined to his military headquarters far behind the lines. But lack of fuel and clearing skies brought the dashing "throw of the dice" to an end by January, 1945.

When a Churchill, fully knowing there exists no danger of an invasion, goes on radio and solemnly declares "we shall never surrender", he is a "hero". When a Stalin can stand and take a Red Army review, with Moscow surrounded on three - but not four - sides, he too is a "hero". But when Hitler, confronted with an unconditional surrender ultimatum from the rest of the world, refuses to surrender, he is denounced as a criminal lunatic. When Hitler refuses the last avenues of escape from a truly surrounded Berlin and reviews boys of the Hitler Youth who have just been in the streets destroying Soviet tanks, and then, at the last moment, chooses to end his own life there, he is called a coward and irresponsible. It all truly is according to who's doing the telling and where they're coming from.

They deride the Battle of Berlin as being "hopeless" and "futile". But it remains as the single greatest land battle ever. Berlin itself was the fourth largest city in the world at that time. Allied bombing had reduced the metropolis to what appeared from the air to be the crater of a huge volcano. And yet the Soviets had to mass three million men - the same number that Germany had used to open the entire front in 1941 - for the assault on the city. In taking the city, they lost nearly a third of these. Some of the very final European troops defending Berlin were French SS volunteers of the Charlemagne Division. Even after the curtain officially came down in May, 1945, the fighting didn't stop. Mainstream sources are beginning to release the facts about a German guerrilla underground which carried on and was cause for great concern among occupiers and collaborators alike.

Armchair warriors love to babble on about how the German generals themselves might have been able to extend the war, to have held out longer, without Hitler. Not only is this false, it fails to take one thing into account: Already by 1939, at the urging of the Jew, Albert Einstein, the United States had entered upon a top secret crash course, the single most expensive undertaking to that time in history, to build an atomic bomb. The "Manhattan Project" employed Jewish physicists from all over America and Europe. The reasoning? Why, that Germany was building one itself, of course. A lie. But had not Germany been completely overrun and occupied when it was, the Jews would have taken supreme delight in using atomic weapons against the heart of Europe. Instead, they were forced to relieve their thirst for vengeance upon Germany's final standing ally, a prostrate Japan.

The Jew, J. Robert Oppenheimer, in his memoirs, recorded that when the time drew near for a first testing of the new weapon, in the summer of 1945, they simply did not know whether or not the earth's atmosphere itself might be ignited. But go ahead with it they did nonetheless. This is what Hitler referred to as "Jewish physics". And this is the true nature of the real enemy.

Hitler had promised the German people that in this war there would be no capitulation as in the last war. He swore that the front could depend upon the home and vice versa, that there would be no strikes, no riots, etc., as in the last war. He kept his promise. He made sure he would be able to fulfill this promise by removing the Jews from German society. Jews were prominent on the other side but not on the side of the "Lost Cause". Germany fought until there wasn't a square foot of ground for them to defend that wasn't in enemy hands.

The leader and the nation were indivisible, inseparable all the way to the end. In his final radio address to the German nation, on January 30th, 1945, the twelfth anniversary of the NSDAP assumption of power, Hitler echoed some of the final words of Christ when he assured the German people that terrible tribulation was in store but that the ultimate victory had been assured by that great political overturn of Satanic power twelve years before.

DEFAMATION

These people - the German nation - exactly like the people of the Old South, knew what they were fighting for just as they knew what they were fighting against. Their freedom, their way of life, their national sovereignty was about to be snuffed out by vicious enemies. And then, of course, there was the matter of honor... an alien concept today but something very real then. They knew, every man, woman and child of them, that they had done nothing wrong.

Literally everyone was spoon-fed from birth on the "evil Nazis" story. Things shifted gears after the war as opposed to the slander as it was before the war.

Now, of course, there were the concentration camps, etc. The concept had been a British invention at the time of the Boer War in South Africa at the turn of the century. (That is, of course, if one wants to exclude the Indian Reservations of the United States from the nineteenth century.) Their purpose was to break the will of the Boer people - Dutch settlers who had come there before the British - where combat in the field had failed to do this. It was war against civilians, where entire families were rounded up and placed behind barbed wire. But it worked.

Then there were the "relocation centers" of the Roosevelt regime established in the Rocky Mountains for Japanese-Americans during the Second World War. These U.S. citizens, in many cases, were simply herded up in complete violation of the Constitution, removed from their homes and businesses on the West Coast, and removed to concentration camps inland. It was purely a racial matter and on the basis of what they "might do" as this country was at war with Japan. Some might argue in favor of its soundness as a move on behalf of national security in time of war.

The British and the Americans won their respective wars and the detainees fared pretty well. But what if things had gone the other way for their captors?

The first of the German concentration camps was established near Munich at Dachau in 1933. It was intended to house common criminals, communists, anti-social elements and, of course, Jews. Crime and subversion were thus wiped out in Germany practically overnight. Not being interested in merely "warehousing" human beings, the Germans intended for these camps to be labor centers as well... "Arbeit Macht Frei", or "Work Will Make You Free". I've never seen or heard tell of any of the actual release records from any of these places but I know they must exist.

I've personally visited Auschwitz and can attest that it was a very nice place. Attractive, humane, comfortable. I base this observation on much experience in lock-ups in America in recent decades which were not nearly as nice as Auschwitz. One incredulous person asked me, "Did you ever have anyone trying to kill you?" First, most understand the danger inherent in U.S. prisons due mainly to the colored population which makes over half the inmates; Second, the officials who send you there, while not having the guts to directly sentence you to death, do so fully knowing WHAT they're sending you to and, being the cowards that they are, simply turn the other way. The Germans, by contrast, at least were forthright and no hypocrites.

Revisionism and many court trials have proved that there never at any time existed any "gas chambers" in any of these so-called "death camps". But, to this day, there are still an amazing number of "survivors" even sixty-years-plus down the line. Each of these camps was put to the fullest use toward the war effort. And to do this one does not starve their inmates. The photos of the piles of starved and diseased bodies were taken after the war and were the result of Allied disruption of German transport, all within the final ninety days of the war itself. Mainstream history admits that Heinrich Himmler was in contact with the neutral Swedes near the end of the war in an effort to get some outside help to relieve this deplorable condition not of his making.

As I realized during my tour of Auschwitz, take any person not familiar with lock-up and show them any prison setting and it will be profoundly disturbing to them. Indeed, no such "tours" are permitted of American or former Soviet gulags just for this reason. And as I well recalled from my direct experience, persons held in confinement are going to harbor a certain resentment for their warders or captors. This was the case with the punks I saw locked up. Imagine the intensity of it as it involved truly arch-criminal types, militantly anti-social types the way we see them nowadays with their public parades, etc., communists who only lately had seen themselves as the most powerful single party in Germany, and, of course, "God's Chosen People" themselves, Jews. Resentment?

Remember that the Allied "cause" was hand-in-glove with the communists, certainly masterminded by Jews, and even in league with the Mafia. Jewish hatred is fairly notorious. Satan dislikes being belled, having his work interfered with. Then there is the matter of money. Any case, however tenuous, of once having been a "victim" of a concentration camp, would bring a large cash settlement from the new West German government after the war. War guilt? Konrad Adenauer, the collaborationist "chancellor" of West Germany, took this blackmail in attempt to help the plight of German prisoners of war still in Allied hands. And finally, lies and recriminations solely for the purpose of smearing the honor of a defeated foe.

Approximately the same thing was done involving the Confederate prisoner of war camp at Andersonville, Georgia, after the Civil War. The North had deliberately packed the place to well beyond what it was intended to hold by refusing to exchange prisoners with the South. This was done as part of their strategy to bleed the South of men. The North could afford to lose men, the South could not. And so the North deliberately condemned their own men to death by starvation and disease. The Southern camp commandant was tried and hanged for this. This, once again, is indicative of the kind of force faced by "The Lost Cause" at both times, in both centuries. They were and are the sort which gives not a single damn for human life.

Then there were the so-called "war crimes trials". Though "hosted" by the Americans in their zone of occupation, these were typically, classically Stalinist show trials of the 1930s purges variety. Senator Robert Taft of Ohio made a lot of powerful enemies at home when he decried United States involvement in anything so grossly illegal as the so-called "Nuremberg Trials". As a lawyer, his argument centered around ex post facto law. This meant that it was in violation of every legal principle to haul people up on charges which didn't even exist on any books anywhere at the time the supposed "crimes" were committed. That plus the accusers themselves acting the part of judge, jury and executioner. No more than a legal lynching.

Just as with the insanity of the whole internationalist, communist-capitalist premise, such show trials were never interested in justice, as such. Their purpose was to demonstrate the "truth" of a patent lie. No real defense was permitted. U.S. Justice Jackson said it all when he remarked that should the German defendants be found not guilty of the charges, it would be the same as saying there had been no war. So the task was to pin it on the vanquished. Once again, the victors writing history. Who can contradict? In several series of such "trials", thousands of men and women were murdered, imprisoned or had their lives destroyed whose only "crime" it had been to defy the Jews, defend their country against the rest of the world, and to have done a damned respectable job of it.

It was no different in the atmosphere immediately following the murder of Jesus and the intensified persecutions of his early followers. Who was to stand in the way?

As following the Civil War, the occupiers had all sorts of pet names to cover the hypocrisy of their own actions. In 1865, it was "Reconstruction". That certainly sounds nice and positive enough. Who could oppose such a thing as that? In 1945, it was "Denazification". And, of course, if you fell for all the lies or otherwise had an ax to grind against the Nazis, that sounded all fine and dandy as well. But in both instances, it was just a cover for the disenfranchisement of the very cream of the society by decree of the occupying, enemy powers, behind whom were the Jews, thirsty for vengeance. The trash, just as with the former Black slaves of the South, many of whom had just been turned out of concentration camps or had previously fled Germany now to be returning in Allied uniforms (like former U.S. Secretary of State, Henry Kissinger) were installed in the new, collaborationist regime.

The similarities didn't end there. The inside "hit" upon Abraham Lincoln right after the Civil War had its parallels as well. General George Patton, hailed as a military genius, had performed his function of helping to destroy the heroic land of Germany with boldness and zest. He was then awarded the military governorship of Bavaria. But what he had witnessed and was about to witness led to some equally bold pronouncements on his part which didn't suit the real masters and their actual purpose. According to Patton, the Germans were the best people in Europe, the contents of the concentration camps were the scum of the earth, and the Western Allies should barrel straight on forward and smash the Soviet Union while the time was ripe. Patton disregarded the "Denazification" order and retained former National Socialists in local positions of authority, simply because he found them to be the most competent. And there was the scandal of the theft of the Reichs Bank gold reserves on his watch which he vowed to personally get to the bottom of.

Late in 1945, an army vehicle that officially wasn't supposed to be where it was at the time, deliberately turned and crashed into Patton's limousine. When he was found to be only injured, not killed, he was dealt a karate blow. He died in the hospital soon thereafter.

James Forrestal, U.S. Secretary of Defense, either was pushed or was induced to jump from a high window in 1949. Either he was about to himself spill the beans on the rampant treason within the Truman administration and was murdered or he was so guilt-stricken at his own involvement with it that he committed suicide.

But, whereas the U.S. South was only occupied by federal troops for a period of ten years, Germany remains enemy-occupied to this day. For a long while it was claimed that those American troops were there to protect against the Russian troops on the other side. But the Soviets withdrew long ago. Why are the Americans still there?

Defamation - no matter how "official" - will be known as a lie to those who were there and truly know the score. Repression will go a long way toward reminding one and all as to exactly who it is now that's calling the shots and that, if you're smart, you'll not rock the boat. It is, finally however, military oppression that serves as the big insurance policy against any national rebirth such as what was seen in the South after the Civil War.

WHAT WENT WRONG?

That's a question asked from two different directions as to the consequences of the Second World War. Most will know that World War One was touted as "The War To End Wars". And the world soon found out that that wasn't necessarily so. Roosevelt took it upon himself to label World War Two as the war to "make the world safe for democracy". But by 1950, half of that world was tightly within the Soviet sphere.

That would, of course, be the premise upon which the army of official myth-makers would base their lamentations as to just why - after the destruction of Germany and the end of Hitler (who embodied all evil, so it went) - the world was even further away from being a place all well and good than it had been before the war. Charles Lindbergh, speaking on behalf of the America First organization in 1939, had warned that should America allow itself to be dragged into yet another European war, the result most probably would be the weakening of civilization itself at home and around the world. (But it was to override those very same strong and popular sentiments in the United States that the Pearl Harbor plot had been hatched.)

Poland, the spark that had been used to commence the war, was now just one more communist slave state. All of the colonial powers of Europe - Britain, France, the Netherlands, Belgium, etc. - were finding the colored subjects in their far-flung empires to be in a state of revolt and, more often than not, in league with international communism. As a direct consequence of this, the United States got its involvements in both Korea and Vietnam. But it had been Roosevelt who confided to his friend, Stalin, that it was his personal desire to see the word "Reich" eliminated from the map. By this he not only meant the German Reich but all of the European empires, even those of his supposed allies.

As the war ground to a close, the U.S. government itself began to reveal its true colors and its true purpose when it, first, ordered the military to be racially integrated and, second, used that same military to force the racial integration of U.S. schools, much to the outrage of the American people. Notice the timing: Only after the job had been accomplished in Europe were these moves attempted. The Jews' war upon the Whites of Europe might not have been possible were they to have moved against the Whites of America first or even simultaneously.

A careful time-table but a time-table nonetheless. Forced racial integration, regardless for what reason anyone may be putting it forth, could only result in, as we have already discussed, the degeneration of any society and any people which tolerates it. And this was "victory"? Perhaps. But for whom? Having known the beliefs and convictions of my own father as well as the fathers of my childhood friends, I know that had this generation been able to see and know the motives behind those who sent them off to fight the Second World War and had they been able to see the real outcome, what it would mean to their children and their grandchildren at home, they would not have taken up arms.

It had been Abraham Lincoln who said that you can fool some of the people some of the time, some of the people all of the time, but that you couldn't fool all of the people all of the time. True enough, as far as it went. But Lincoln was never among the number of the master conspirators. They know that all one must do is remove all real decision-making capability from out of the hands of the people - while still permitting them their utterly compromised and meaningless former institutions to suck on like a baby bottle - maintain a tight grip over all media, and then go on about pursuing one's own, private agenda. The people themselves will remain absorbed in trivialities while time takes care of the rest.

The object of the conspiracy is to get the damage done. No lie is too great, or too foul. No price is too dear. No crime is too high. The re-making of humanity according to the twisted imagery of the Talmudites and/or the Marxists. Truly, since the fall of the Iron Curtain, they have become one. In any case, the price tag for all of this isn't supposed to be borne by the conspirators, anyway. It is to be paid by their victims. All of the brilliance and beauty of a thousand years of Western, Christian civilization - together with the White race that built it - sacrificed on the altar of a false, Jewish god.

But to the somewhat lower levels, those rungs on the ladder not fully in-the-know, it did seem to appear as though something had gone terribly wrong. Oh, well. Trudge onward in the same, tired direction, parroting the same, old platitudes and blurbs - standing in for genuine ideals - which, it still seems to the not-overly-bright, had "won" World War Two. What had "won" World War Two was fully committed and motivated White spirit and industry. The tragedy, of course, was that it had been turned against itself, thus committing suicide. But a concept like that, of course, is "racist" and racism is the worst sort of evil, according to modern mythology as spoken by the Jews and their lackeys. So, therefore, reality is out and make-believe superstition is in. And so it has gone ever since in this realm of Satan's Little Season.

We, of course, know what went wrong insofar as the stated cause and purpose had been for the Second World War. It is simply that none of it jibed at all with truth or reality. Millions of people died thinking one thing. But the actual outcome was according to plan. Only a precious few were aware of this plan, however, and so how could the broad masses have been expected to view the outcome as anything proper? Tough! The damage is done and can't be undone. And your "greatest generation" wielded the weapon that killed his own brother at the behest of Satan.

The "greatest generation", the generation of my parents, those who fought the Second World War. The Jews, the liberals and all those of a deluded, unrealistic mindset are fond now of referring to them as such because, to their own distorted vision of things, it was they who "saved the world". Saved it from what? Saved it for what? For this?! They may have been the greatest generation but only for this reason: Every generation to have followed theirs, including my own, has failed to measure up to theirs in terms of White civility. Their generation was as high as it ever went in terms of White, Christian civilization, that is, this final phase of White history and development on earth before the end arrives. The tragedy: It was their devotion and bravery that was used by Satan to destroy its own underpinnings and pave the way for the decline, the slide into hell which has gone on uninterruptedly ever since.

Knowledge and awareness explains all of that. NOTHING went wrong according to the plan of the conspirators. As far as the dream, the ideal presented by the conspirators to the sucker trade... Well, that's why it's called a sucker trade. However, something did begin to go awry for the conspiracy AFTER it was over with.

SACRIFICE

One stark but little known fact is that what actually forced the First World War to a close was the pandemic of influenza of 1918. That killed more soldiers and civilians than the war itself. Another stark but practically unknown reality is that at least as many German soldiers and civilians died AFTER the surrender in May of 1945 than before. Millions in the expulsions from the east, millions in Soviet gulags and, yes, millions in Allied POW camps. But official history doesn't like to talk about this. It just doesn't "fit" the profile of "The Great Endeavor", the title of Eisenhower's ghost-written blockbuster take on the big myth.

Germany made the sacrifice. Most of the leadership, that of the military as well as the civilian, knew this at the time and it is what enabled them to fight on to the very last despite the fact that it was, indeed, a lost cause. With regard to the Old South, they might have had Lincoln's kind and generous words to cling to for false hope. With regard to the First World War, they might have had Wilson's magnanimous-sounding "Fourteen Points" to go to sleep with. But in the Second World War all they had was the cry for their blood from Stalin's propaganda minister, Ilya Ehrenburg - a Jew - when he said, "Kill! Kill! In the German race there is nothing but evil; not one among the living, not one among the yet unborn but is evil! Follow the precepts of Comrade Stalin. Stamp out the fascist beast once and for all in its lair! Use force and break the racial pride of these German women. Take them as your lawful booty. Kill! As you storm onward, kill, you gallant soldiers of the Red Army!" While, on the other hand, they had the Morgenthau Plan to literally dismember and do away with their country altogether. Its author, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., was Roosevelt's Secretary of the Treasury, another Jew.

Those within the above outlined mindset naturally would not be able to properly understand the motives for holding out to the very last. Theirs was then and it is commonly held now the object to strike the quickest, easiest compromise. But the lines still were drawn then and there as yet remained not only something worth fighting for but the means of fighting for it. Honor demanded the utmost. That was for the present. If there was to be a future, then its basis had to be drawn now. If a Western Alliance, united against the Bolshevik menace couldn't be achieved in the manner Hitler would have wanted, i.e., through brotherly support, it would have to be done any way at all, no matter the sacrifice.

Toward this end, Hitler held out the hand to the last. The army group cut off on the Kurland peninsula of Latvia was ordered to hold its position as it would make a perfect beach head behind Soviet lines should, by some miracle, any one of the governments of the West come to its senses in time. All resistance in the West ceased while everything was poured toward the East in an attempt to allow as many refugees as possible to escape to the West while, at the same time, drawing as many Western troops as deeply into German territory as possible for the showdown with the Soviet Union which Hitler not only knew was inevitable but which had comprised a major part of his life's effort.

Throughout this booklet I have brought up the dichotomy of national will or national best interest versus the secret agenda of the world conspirators. As of 1945, the Jews had suckered the peoples of the world to go and snuff out all remaining resistance to their planned world dictatorship. And they got them to do this in the very name of "freedom".

All of my studies and experience has led me to the conclusion that that year, and for that reason, marked the end of the Thousand Years of Christ. After all, the writers of the collective books of the Bible strive hard to make it clear that the Jews represent the body of Satan and it was now this body of Satan which sat in control of the whole earth, economically, politically, culturally and militarily. Any organized resistance to this anywhere would only take the form of some tin-pot, Third World, colored dictator, never among White Christians of Europe or America where it would matter.

Such a situation as this would not only herald but also describe to a "T" what, according to the Book of Revelation, comes next: Satan's Little Season. And whatever, Biblically, a "little season" might be in comparison to a thousand years, it is currently more than sixty years along and fulfilling many of the "markers" given for it within the very final pages of Revelation.

Just as Hitler had hoped for, some vestiges of national consciousness did manage to assert themselves, especially within the United States after the death of Roosevelt and after the "honeymoon" with his "gallant Soviet allies". The stooge, Churchill, after having been turned out of office by the British public as soon as the war was over, went on a speech-making tour and stole a line from Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda minister, about "an iron curtain descending over Europe". True American politicians like Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin were uncovering scores of highly-placed Soviet espionage agents, mostly Jews, and were causing great alarm among the American public. True American military leaders like General Douglas MacArthur were pointing to treason at the highest levels of government.

Among those of Christian Identity there is the conviction that these two verses from Malachi, numbers five and six from chapter four, foretell the coming of Hitler: "Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord:" "And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to the fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse." Jesus Christ did not do this. He openly stated that his presence would cause division among families. At this point there will be no more prophets. And so one would think that this had to refer to Hitler simply by virtue of the way he healed and united the entire German nation. But the rest of the White world didn't heed and the Day of the Lord is set and impending.

Those same people also are convinced that the following verse from Revelation, number three from chapter thirteen, refers to a renewed threat from the East following the defeat of the Mongols in the form of the Bolsheviks: "And I saw one of his heads as it were wounded to death; and his deadly wound was healed: and all the world wondered after the beast." This could either refer to the much earlier Mongols or it might refer directly to the near-win that the Germans had over the Bolsheviks early in the war. From 1945 until the sudden collapse of the Soviet Union over forty years later, that super-power was like unto the "Golem" of literature, a monster created by the rabbis to do their bidding and crush their enemies.

After all, how could the Bible totally ignore the events which would bring to a close the Thousand Years of Christ? These hordes of murderers and rapists at Satan's own beck and call were halted there, in the heart of Germany, right where they had been halted a thousand years before and they would advance no further... not against White, European soil.

The bottom line to all of this, after all of the many different "takes", "spins" and myth-making tailored to suit the Satanic outlook are through, has to be that God would not permit Satan and his forces to take the nations of his people by storm. The Third World notwithstanding, if Satan were to rule, he would have to do it by continued deceit, with the further connivance of White sell-outs, with the more or less cooperation of the Whites themselves, exactly the way he is doing.

As God made it plain, only we are his people; his laws are only for us; only we can break them; and only we will be punished for so doing. And we are being punished. But it is the enemy who will be wiped out.

The Cold War set in. Jewish communist sympathizers were doing and continue to do their best to destroy Western, Christian civilization and the White race. The damage they have done and shall continue to do is enormous. But events are catching up and threaten to cut off Satan's allotted time before he can complete his task. This is, after all, the way the prophecy reads.

With the Cold War, Germany, or at least West Germany, was reunited and rearmed. The Morgenthau Plan was trash-canned as the powers of reason and sanity began to prevail in the light of harsh reality. The storm of rape and pillage in the East burned itself out like some raging forest fire and died away. Germany arose from its ashes like a phoenix, becoming a pivotal force in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and very quickly took its place among those few most prosperous nations in the world known as the "G8".

Hitler's words in Mein Kampf which had stated that men do not go to ruin through lost wars were fully vindicated. Hitler's three-prong imperative had always been to: One, free Germany from the Versailles Treaty; Two, free Germany from starvation, and; Three, to destroy Bolshevism. All accomplished. It might have been said that, by 1989, Hitler had won the war.

Well, almost...

LYING DOWN BEFORE THE BEAST

The proviso supplied immediately following that most correct observation, according to Hitler, was that only the loss of purity of blood destroys people and nations.

It came down to forty-years-plus of "global chess", all wrapped neatly in a blanket of attrition, something which the Soviet system couldn't maintain over the long haul, exactly as Hitler had predicted in Mein Kampf. This was an incredibly short period of time in historic terms but it wasn't without moments of great stress.

Was it liberation or conquest? As we have seen, on the surface, they appear much the same. We have also seen that whoever it is on top will naturally be inclined to paint it in the rosiest colors. Has the United States, as it metamorphoses and metastasizes its way into becoming the Beast System, actually become its own final victim? Would a nation do this to itself? Would our fathers have wanted this for us? The population reflects darker and darker; The culture is like unto something emanating from an insane asylum; The mania for so-called "equality" has come to parallel that world where it was ever in place... the Soviet Union; And the social mores have come to parallel that world where a certain kind of "liberation" has always existed... pornography. Who, in fact, is calling the shots?

Enemy, Jewish infiltration within the U.S. government, media and the structure of the whole society might have been pointless in the long run were it not to have shown its face with regard to what it intended for the future of the United States and the world. Even when discussing the threat of militant communism, one mustn't lose sight of its own ultimate goal: The remolding of mankind - or rather, its leveling - down to the lowest common denominator. Racial integration. The pretty lies to suck in the air-headed idealists, the trained and disciplined subversion to overthrow the established order, even the taking of naked power... All of this would be pointless minus an ultimate aim to be carried out by all of this.

There was a struggle on, alright. The aroused national awareness of the White, American masses to the menace of international communism versus the deeply entrenched, pro-communist influence of the Jews and their "fellow travelers" in the conspiracy. But the United States was so strong - then and as of the time of this writing - that any truly astute individual should have recognized that the only real threat to it would have had to come from within. Communism, or Bolshevism, as a viable political force in the world was now a dead letter. But while it still survived, it served the World Conspiracy well as a "bogy man", the perfect means by which to keep the attention turned away from where it belonged and fixed upon some diversion or another out in the world.

Decades after the fact, the word finally came out that it had been Eisenhower's stated motive in "red-lining" the racial integration, or "civil rights" movement in the United States to prevent the masses of U.S. Blacks from flocking to the banners of communism. To have brought millions of Blacks into American society lock, stock and barrel? Did he believe this? Or had he used this as the excuse to force the outrageous and the unacceptable? Robert Welch, in his exhaustive study of Eisenhower and his career, entitled "The Politician", did a commendable and convincing job of making Eisenhower himself out to be just one more cog in the wheels of the Jewish-Marxist machinery. Even had he been sincere, a move such as this would be similar to blowing your own brains out in order to keep from being murdered.

But Eisenhower did order Little Rock which began the integration of American schools. "Get 'em young." Of course, they point to the Hitler Youth as the prime example of "subverting the youth". It doesn't require a giant intellect to know that the time to either safeguard or to ruin a people is in the time of its youth, when it is most malleable, most impressionable. Once again, even if a move such as this had been based on sincere motivations, i.e., to provide Blacks with an equal opportunity of education, the fact is that racial integration ripped the very foundations out from under U.S. education and made it into the "blackboard jungle" that it has long since become.

It does, just as it has always, come down to TIME and PROXIMITY. Previously, the United States had been two very distinct societies: White and colored. Now it was to become one. And it works like this: You are either White or you are not. Cultural pollution began to take place at the same time. "Rock 'n' Roll". On the one hand, get American youth accustomed to Black exposure. On the other hand, get them infected with so-called Black "culture". Yes, there certainly were strong critics against this at the time but they were drowned out by the ridicule of the Jewish-controlled media. We knew then just as we can see today that their warnings had been correct. Look at the state of things.

But no matter. The damage not only is done, it is irreversible. To the conspiracy, that is all that matters.

Not wanting to turn this into some conservative lamentation on the ills affecting society but the epidemic of dope arrived hand-in-hand with the rest. Dope has ever been a commonality among coloreds everywhere. Not so among the White masses until racial integration began to make strides. Homosexuality, likewise, has always been casually accepted among colored types. Not so among White societies... excepting those that are marked for death. And miscegenation, direct crossing of the races. This most mortal of sins has, regrettably, always gone on but - not by way of trying to excuse it - it has been White men taking colored women and any result of such ungodly union being relegated to colored, not White, society. Today it is the opposite. This is the rapid approach of death.

The worst sort of shame and disgrace has now become "fashionable" or, at the very least, "okay" in the eyes of the general society. Certainly it has the protection of the law and is being constantly promoted by the media. The Church, on any real issue, amounts to a bad joke. All of this, given time, spells DEATH for the culture and the race. And so we begin to see that it hasn't been really a matter of "boundaries" and "who shot first" in the case of these wars we've been discussing. It's been a lot more than just that. Just as nothing springs up all at once - either in evolution or in the building of civilizations, etc. - nothing goes down all at once, either. One line after another is breached until there is nothing left. Sovereignty - the ability to BE yourself and LIVE according to your own rules has to be among the first of these. But certainly racial awareness and integrity has to be equal with that, otherwise, what's the point?

"...or we might be speaking German today." Was that what it was all about? I've already mentioned how close we were to that by Congressional vote. And I've mentioned all the internecine wars between White nations for countless centuries, with one conquering the other, back and forth. The race and the culture remained on the way UP throughout. No. It is only when an ALIEN presence takes hold and takes its own advantage when brother fights brother that the downward trend begins. This is what people can't see.

Everything that has come since, or that will come in the future, by way of national shame and degradation, enters via the threshold that was established when this society was racially integrated. Once that point was passed, no longer could any line be expected to hold anywhere.

If somehow it were to have stopped there, it still would have been enough to destroy American society over time. The Moslem societies, for example, have the stiffest penalties for dope use and trafficking and keep their women in the strictest subjection. But for what purpose? They long ago lost all racial integrity, can never retrieve it, and will forever remain damned as part of the Third World. It is for this reason that race-mixing alone is the one unforgivable sin according to the Christian Bible.

Each and every society that has gradually accepted its former, colored slaves into its midst has corrupted and died. No exceptions. Time and proximity are all that is required once the barriers are removed. Here in the present, however, we see the hand at work of those who are in a hurry, historically speaking. The deliberateness of it all, the high-handedness of it all. Even the going out from time to time on a dangerous limb for this mad goal. Jews want this done and they want it done FAST.

Their media, the "lying wonder", paves the way by dulling the senses and poisoning the instincts. Their bought-off politicians put pretty words to policies of degeneration and death. Their hired armies of police, etc., provide the muscle to see it through, over the heads of any popular resistance. And time and proximity do the rest.

The population once fought back. The fifties and sixties were times of riots against these very things. But occupying federal troops and even local police were duty-bound to carry out orders from above. Again, the media sapped the popular will. Following the Civil War, the U.S. still had greater days ahead of it. Only after the Second World War did the effects intended for Reconstruction really begin to take hold, not only in the South but all across the United States. Beyond even that, it was now the whole of White, Western, Christian civilization that was falling into the grip of this mindset toward suicide.

The kinds of things which would have occurred only as a result of direct enemy alien assault or conquest today go on "normally", as a matter of course, within society's context. These people have been beaten down, softened up, brainwashed and conditioned, into this "last days of the Roman Empire" state by decades of Jewish media poisoning. And they think it's "right" and "their own idea". Death truly does wear many masks. It is that these people have an impossible time recognizing a government - a tyranny - of enemy occupation if it smiles and is home-grown? Would this be how one gets a people to "worship the Beast"?

No Southerner, whether due to the loss of the Civil War or the resultant hardships of Reconstruction, ever cursed the names of Jefferson Davis, Robert E. Lee or any other of the Confederate leadership. They still KNEW who their enemy was and they still retained their identity and community, despite all. Because of this they were able to survive and maintain themselves into the future. Today, of course, the world - but most specially the WHITE world - curses the name of Adolf Hitler. They do so because of the effects of the "lying wonder", something which never existed before. They don't know any better or any different and the enemy has taken care to see that they can't find out. A people thus separated from its true leadership, its true heroes, its true saviors, doesn't stand a chance.

In more recent decades things have graduated to the implementation of so-called "hate crime" laws. As if to dramatically move to pre-empt the thoughts of Lincoln on the matter of not being able to fool everybody forever, they use this tool, which might have been dreamt up by George Orwell himself for his novel, "1984", of a totalitarian state, to use the force of the state itself in going after and crushing what little civil resistance as may be left to this evil and insanity.

The tiny bands of resistance, growing ever tinier decade by decade, which have adopted and embraced the very symbols of The Lost Cause itself - the Ku Klux Klan cross and the Nazi Swastika - in present-day America, coined a term in the late twentieth century which fits the actual situation perfectly: They now came to call it the Zionist Occupation Government, or Z.O.G. It is, in all reality, a government of enemy occupation and the identity of that enemy is the Zionist Jews along with their collaborationist cohorts, no matter what their color. Image and methodology may be smoother, more sophisticated when compared to that of the communists of old, etc., but the brains are the same just as is the final goal: A brown world with Jewish overlords. Literally hell on earth.

Well, the Bible did declare it to be Satan's Little Season. He shall continue to run amok just as he has been running amok for longer than anyone now alive can remember, unopposed in any real sense. Even the supposed "best" among Whites can only think in terms of "a little more of this" or "a little less of that" while what remains of their society, their race, is being steadily and irrevocably eroded away. The "best" blood and the "best" minds place themselves somewhere to the left or right of a center which has been sliding steadily further off base for a full century. So it can be expected to continue. For what is there to change it?

The Lost Cause on earth has been, in reality, God's own cause. The cause of the prosperity and well-being of his own highest creation: The White race. This book has attempted to study at some depth the background of the other "cause" which, to date, has proved all-triumphant in earthly matters and I am confident that we have pinned it just where it belongs: The cause of Satan. It all only just fits naturally and logically. But how few are those who can see it in this way?

It's long since been down to where society at the time of Saint Paul and the earliest apostles found itself. Within the confines of a great yet rotten Roman Empire, where it has become morally every man, woman and child for himself, and, to paraphrase Paul, a Satan roaming at will like a ravening beast and seeking to devour whomever he may. And, to be sure, he is devouring them by the millions. Whites - especially the young - falling like flies to the evil that has been deliberately unleashed upon them in the form of multi-culturalism and multi-racialism. With no place to turn for guidance or protection, Satan having full control of the governments, the media, the education, the so-called "leaders", and even the churches.

However, IF a person can see all of this for what it is, he then may be able to find his own way through the maze and the fog. If one truly knows the ways of his enemy, then nothing which that enemy can do will ever catch him by surprise. Then the truth can make you free. And you can take even further heart by knowing that every bit of this was clearly foreseen and its final outcome written of thousands of years ago. Satan, the supposed "master conspirator", has been playing into it, blindly and unawares, all along. Satan, in truth, is too stupid to see himself as Satan.

Otherwise, I assure you, he wouldn't be playing this game. And it approaches its imminent climax.

It may never have been a sin to be found deluded by all these lies. But it most certainly would be a sin to remain in them.
